Compensation was paid from date of accident, June 21, 1921, until January 15, 1922, when it was determined that Hendrix had suffered permanent injuries to the extent of 20 per cent of both hands. A dispute arose as to Hirman's ability to work during that time. A petition was filed before the compensation commissioner and a hearing held when compensation was allowed for nine days beginning October 7, at $2.50 each week. Hirman refused to accept the services of the company's physician so medical expense was allowed by the commissioner.

SAYS UPRISING IS A FRAMEUP

HARRISON, Ark., Jan. 18.—A new formof government—mob law with the sanction of the courts—was born here today.

Circuit Judge Shinn stated that the "citizens court,' 'which has seized striking railroad workers and questioned them regarding alleged sabotage against the Missouri and North Arkansas railroad, was working under his authority.

The court refused to explain the unusual situation except to say that the twelve members of the "citizens' court" were under oath.

Meanwhile the "court" worked behind closed doors while delegated posses searched Harrison and the surrounding country for strikers. Many of those taken before the court were flogged afterward, altho the "citizens" denied complicity.

Rifle squads were sent miles from town in search of those who fled following the lynching of E. C. Gregor, striker, by a mob of farmers and business men.

New arrivals in Harrison were taken before the "citizens' committee" and if they were found to have no connection with alleged sabotage against the railroad, a white ribbon was pinned on their coats to designate them as "friends."

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 18.—"The uprising" at Harrison, Ark., is a "frameup of railroad officials," J. P. Venable, labor leader, who escaped from the mob, charged in a statement here today. The burning of eight bridges on the Missouri and North Arkansas railroad which resulted in mob rule at Harrison, was due to defective fire boxes on dilapidated engines used on the roalroad ,the statement charged. "Outlawry, murder and ruin" rule in Harrison, Venable charged. "Homes have been violated and the wives of stikers tortured and cast into the streets."

HARRISON, Ark., Jan. 18.—Harrison continued about its routine business as mob rule reigned. The visible results of the activities were signs conspicuously placed in business houses proclaiming the "open shop." Three small stores had been closed for refusal to post the signs.

The hand of the ruling "citizens' committee," however, dictated the resignation of a number of city officials. Mayor Clute said he would tender his resignation under pressure and three members of the council announced they would resign.

"The citizens' committee' continued to delegate possess to seek out strikers and their sympathizers. The few that were found were taken before the "citizens' court." The court, conducted behind doors, questioned every one brought in. Members of the "court," declared they merely were conducting investigations, but many of those who left the hall were flogged by a posse later.

"We are not against union men," members of the committee declared. "All we ask is that working men be fair." However, only committee members and those who have been sanctioned by them wear the little white ribbon which designates mob members from railroad workers.

ARTERIES OF TRADE TAKEN

Ruhr Canals and Railroads Controlled by French.

NO SERIOUS DISTURBANCES

Germans Remain Firm in Opposition to the Seizure.

Forests of Rhine to Be Worked by Allies If German Miners Continue Refusal to Work Under Troops.

BERLIN, Jan. 18.—Germany today notified France and Belgium there is danger of a collision between allied and German forces if the occupation of the Ruhr valley is extended further toward Muenster.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—The Germany embassy here announced that German troops were withdrawing from Muenster.

(The German troops around Muenster totaled one battalion of infantry, one squadron of cavalry and a tank corps, according to German sources.)

An unconfirmed dispatch from Dortmund said the French were resuming their advance toward Hamm, which is also in the genera direction of Muenster.

A transport and thirty tanks are moving from Dortmund towarc Dorstfeld.

ESSEN, Jan. 18.—The French seized loaded German coal barges on the Rhine and on the Rhineheren canal near Duisberg today.

The barges were held up and the captain's papers taken away.

New clearance papers for French destinations were furnished, and the barges were directed to proceed to Strassburg instead of to the German destinations to which their cargoes were consigned.

ESSEN, Jan. 18.—The arteries of German industry, canals and railroads that carried fuel and steel from the heart of the Ruhr to the rest of Germany, were gripped by the French invaders of the Rhineland today, as additional punitive measures to enforce coal deliveries went into effect. There is now no road out of the Ruhr not controlled by France's armed forces.

Forests of the Rhineland are to be worked by the allies, as well as coal mines, if German miners persist in their refusal to work under French bayonets and no pains are to be spared, it is stated, to make the occupation of the Ruhr a success.

In the face of additional penalties, threats of court martial for the Ruhr's most prominent mine owners and further seizure of territory, the Germans remained adamant in stubborn opposition to the will of the invaders.

The national coal commission repeated its prohibition against deliveries of coal to France eand Belgium.

Disturbances at Dortmund, Luenen and Essen failed to lead to serious trouble.

France's punitive measures were put into effect deliberately here and there thruout the Ruhr today.

French engineers, who had been stationed at Essen, scattered mysteriously to various sections of the occupied area early this morning. They refused information regarding apparently new sanctions.

French headquarters declared the occupying forces are not going into the mines themselves, but hinted at confiscation.

Some of the mine offices of the fuel companies are to be taken over, but the French prefer to proceed slowly with their new measures.

The Germans met these moves with the same passive resistance that characterized their attitude toward the invasion, but some big industrialists of the Ruhr fear hunger may defeat plans of both French and Germans. Food is scarce. Prices are outpacing the crashing mark. Miners, the best workers, now earning 20,000 marks a week, are in a desperate position.

At the outside, but two months' supplies remain in the occupied area, and with France holding canals, highways and railroads and the prospect of complete cessation of work at many of the biggest mines and plants of the Ruhr, the situation is serious.

The German coal conferees announced they refuse to confer with the French, the last word having been said.

A barber in a little village near Essen sold picture postal cards of the occupation yesterday. Today his shop was a wreck, smashed to pieces by a German crowd.

M. Costa, chairman of the French engineering commission, announced the first penalties will consist of confiscation of coal cars on the railroads and coal barges on the canals. He said the mines would not be confiscated.

The French general in command here ordered Herr Thyssen and five other prominent operators to come before him "for advice," but not for orders. The Germans refused to consider any further conferences, they announced earlier in the day.

FIRST AID TO HELP PROBERS

VARSITY INVESTIGATORS CALL UPON ATTORNEY GENERAL.

Members of House Qualify for Seats in Murderers' Row by Slaying Bills in Committee and on House Floor.

Representative James Auten of the committee created at his request to investigate university expenditures, asked the house Thursday for a helping hand and he received it. A motion presented by him and adopted with little opposition, requires the attorney general to designate an assistant who shall give such time to the committee as the committee may require. Mr. Auten admits that he needs expert help. His committee, he said, will commence functioning in the near future. He expected to call a meeting Thursday afternoon.

Representative Orr, democrat, named as member of the probe committee to succeed Theo Osterman, resigned, is not suspicious of the university or of its management. He realizes that time is too short for a thoro investigation nor does he indicate belief that there is need of a top to bottom investigation.

Members of the house qualified for box seats in murderers' row by slaughtering six bills in committee and on the house floor. Following is a list of the dead:

H. R. 26—making it discretionary with county boards whether or not they shall appropriate money to agricultural societies for permanent county fair improvements.

H. R. 65—requiring county officers to file semi-annual estimates of supplies and equipment.

H. R. 3—Law protecting birds not to apply to protection of orchards against bird ravages by authorized directors of federal or state horticultural stations.

H. R. 20—Making waters of Platte river in Nebraska a game reserve and bird refuge.

H. R. 59—Exempting crows from classification of non-game birds. This matter covered in an other bill.

H. R. 65—Permits cancellation of certificates for practice veterinary surgery and dentistry when practitioner fails to administer anaesthetic.

The first five above listed bills were killed in standing committee. The veterinarian bill was killed in committee of the whole. Members took the stand that ample provision is made in the statutes for malpractice and that the proposed measure is indefinite as to scope. Farmers and stockmen do not want such a law to apply to vaccination of stock and to the dehorning o fcattle. The introducer intimated that it was aimed particularly at horse doctors. He said that the old horse doctors armed themselves with a plug of tobacco, a pint of whisky and considerable brutality. His purpose was to block brutal treatment of animals in major operations.

H. R. 66 which provides that the county road dragging fund may be used for the graveling of highways, was advanced to third reading. It is particularly applicable to the sand hill country.

SENATE CUTS CODE WAGES

FAVORS REDUCTION OF SALARY OF SIX SECRETARIES.

Advances Reed Bill Just as If Legislature Proposed to Retain Code and Heads of Departments.

On the eve of the hour to assemble to hear Governor Bryan's budget message doing away with secretaries of the six code department and giving their duties to others the state senate in committee of the whole acted just as if it intends to retain the code and its secretaries tho placing these appointees upon a reduced salary.

The senate acted upon its first bill in committee of the whole. The bill was S. F. 1, by Reed of Hamilton. The bill was considered with scarcely an attempt at discussion and recommended for third reading. Robbins of Douglas was in the chair.

"This is an important bill," he announced before putting the final motion to advance to third reading. "If you have anything to say now is the time."

If the republican majority expetced the minority to oppose the bill they were disappointed. Chambers of Douglas, republican mildly inquired for some explanation for the proposed reduction in salaries. Reed responded with a brief statement that the constitutional convention increased executive salaries under the impression that higher pay would get better officers. He said he did not desire to reflect upon any state officer, but the result was that we now have two state officers receiving $5,000 a year who were the identical officers who previously received $2,000 a year under the former constitution of the state.

Purcell of Custer, democrat, favored the reduction, saying he proposed as a member of the house at a former session to reduce all secretaries of the code from $5,000 a year to $3,600 each. He believed Reed had exercised better judgment by grading the pay in accordance with the character of the duties to be performed.

The bill as amended gives the secretaries of the labor and public welfare departments $2,500, those of finance and agriculture $3,000 each and of trade and commerce and public works $4,000. The emergency clause was added to the bill so that it can take effect upon passage by the two houses and possibly before Governor Bryan appoints new secretaries.

S. F. 12, by Wiltse, was placed upon the general file on recommendation of the committee on fees and salaries, with an amendment restoring the governor's salary to $7,500 and a provision that the reductions proposed upon salaries of state officers and judges shall not become effective during the term of office of incumbents. The bill gives state officers and district judges $4,000 a year and judges of the supreme court $5,500. The measure will be considered by the senate Friday.

S. F 19, by Banning, to deduct court costs from proceeds of sale of automobiles under prohibition laws was indefinitely postponed on request of the judiciary committee. S. F. 31, by Rickard, increasing from five to ten years the limitation for actions upon written contracts and form judgments was also indefinitely postponed.

S. F. 11, by Good, reducing the fee for inspecting potatoes in car lots from $4 to $3 was placed upon the general file.

S. F. 6, by Wiltse, requiring deputy county officers to assist in work in other county offices without additional pay, was placed upon the general file, with an amendment excepting Douglas county.

The senate planned to spend Thursday afternoon in joint session with the house to hear Governor Bryan's budgetary message.

SENATE DECLINES TO SUPPORT MONDELL

Members of Upper Branch of Legislature Willing to Give Personal But Not Official Endorsement.

The senate refused by a vote of 16 to 13 to adopt a resolution offered Thursday by Allen of Dawson. It recommended Congressman Frank Mondell of Wyoming for appointment by President Harding to the post of secretary of the interior.

After it was defeated a majority of the senators agreed to sign a personal recommendation for Mondell. Cooper of Douglas opposed the resolution by saying he did not know why the senate should dictate to the president the membership of his cabinet Saunders of Douglas also opposed on the ground that the senate has no authority to speak on such subject for the people of Nebraska. He said he knew Mondell and believed him competent for a cabinet position and would be glad to sign a personal recommendation for his appointment Allen said Mondell was the best authority in the country on irrigation matters and Nebraska is interested in his selection.

Robbins of Douglas, Fries of Howard and Kroh of Keith were appointed a committee to confer with the house in regard to an investigation of the tri-county irrigation project with a view to a report to the legislature, the project to pay all expenses of an inquiry. The association formed by citizens of Kearney, Phelps and Adams counties desires legislative endorsement so it can obtain construction work thru the federal government.

Wilkens, chairman of the committee on accounts and expenditures recommended the printing of 1,000 copies of each bill passed by the legislature at the expense of the legislative incidental appropriation bill. The report was adopted without discussion in regard to the need of this sort of printing or of the expense involved. Two years ago copies of bills passed were printed so long after the session closed that they did the legislators and others little or no good.

KENYON IS TO BE SENTENCED

DISTRICT JUDGE STEWART REFUSED TO GRANT NEW TRIAL.

Motion for Another Hearing Was Based on Allegation That Pressure Was Used on Charles Maixner.

District Judge Willard E. Stewart refused Thursday morning to grant a new trial to Houghton W. Kenyon, convicted December 7 on a charge of converting to his own use a certificate of 1,600 shares of stock, property of Otto H. Brockman, in the Bankers Fire Insurance company. The judge announced that Kenyon might be sentenced Thursday afternoon.

The motion for a new trial was based by Frank M. Tyrrell, attorney for Mr. Kenyon, on the allegation that material changes had been effected in the testimony of the state's witnesses between the time of the preliminary hearing in justice court and the trial in district court.

Mr. Tyrrell alleged that undue pressure had been brought to bear by the former attorney general upon Charles Maixner, a witness for the state, to get Maixner to testify against Kenyon.

BUDGET JOB IS TOO BIG

GOVERNOR SAYS NOT ENOUGH TIME GIVEN HIM TO WORK.

Fifteen Days Too Small a Period for a Man to Find Out All About Spending Agencies and Activities of State.

In submitting his budget message to the Nebraska legislature Thursday afternoon, Governor Bryan declared that the man who drew the budget law must have had the idea that a governor in Nebraska was elected for life and had a continuing responsibility for expenditures; that the taxpayers and voters would not be interested in the cost of state government or the state government's various activities or its spending agencies: that an incoming governor's and an incoming legislature's duties would be merely prefunctory, and that it would not be necessary for them to have a detailed knowledge of the state's activities in order to discharge their responsibilities to the voters and taxpayers. He added:

"The members of your honorable body, after persuing the budget submitted by the outgoing governor, will realize that it would be physically and mentally impossible for an incoming governor to make a thoro investigation, or any more than touch the surface of all the state's many activities, trace expenditures of moneys, pick out the overlappings, duplications, unnecessary departments, extravagances, waste, etc., within fifteen days. According to the construction by the attorney general's office, the fifteen days referred to means "calendar days," and I assume includes Sundays, and that the incoming governor would be required to report to the legislature before the fifteen days expired, whether it was in session or not.

"I suggest that it might be well for your legislature body to give this budget law some attention with a view to harmonizing it with the idea that the governor, state officers and the legislature elected at a regular general election should have sufficient time, and that it should be their duty to familiarize themselves with their obligations to the people so that they could be prepared to discharge those obligations as the principles upon which the government is founded require.

"After an almost continuous investigation covering the time allotted the incoming governor to investigate the financial condition of the state government and the various state activities, spending agencies, etc., it has not been possible to make an entire new budget but only to make a tentative report for your guidance and for further investigation on your part, and with such recommendations from the chief executive as the short time allotted to him permitted. I want to assure you that I will continue my investigations and will gladly cooperate in every way possible with members of your body and with the members of committees appointed by you whose duties require them to present a budget for the consideration of your body."

A KANSAS SHERIFF HID UNDER A BED

Says He Heard Prisoner Tell Another Inmate That He Killed City Marshal and Stole an Auto.

Sheriff Pete C. Anderson, of Hoxie, Sheridan county, Kas., lay under a bed in his own cell one night recently and heard a prisoner who gave the name of Dan Morrill tell another prisoner that he, Morrill, had killed a city marshal "about seventy miles from Omaha," and that he stole an auto in order to get away, according to Sheriff Hensel.

A communication reaching Sheriff Claude Hensel Thursday morning from Sheriff Anderson stated that the Sunflower sheriff is holding the man who called himself Morrill for "stealing several cars" in Sheridan county.

The sheriff in Kansas also telephoned to Mr. Hensel saying that by lying under Morrill's bed he learned that Morrill is trying to communicate with someone somewhere by letter in an effort to induce the person to burn up a car. Mr. Morrill is alleged to have said he would "be sent to hell" if the Nebraska officers find the auto he wants burned.

Sheriff Hensel has not heard of any city marshal being killed "about a year ago" at a place seventy miles from Omaha. Sheriff Anderson said Morrill at first claimed to be D. H. Morrill, of 1612 Burdett street, Omaha.

HASKELL HAS GOOD CHANCE

EMERALD MAN HIT BY BROTHER-IN-LAW STILL LIVES.

Richard Maughan Is in County Jail Awaiting Outcome of Victim's Injuries and of Investigation by Towle.

Wade Haskell, Emerald farmer whose skull was fractured Wednesday afternoon by a blow with a baseball bat held in the hands of his brother-in-law, Richard Maughan, also of Emerald, was said to have slightly improved at noon Thursday. He is in St. Elizabeth's hospital suffering with a fractured skull, a broken nose and battered knees.

Maughan told the story of how he happened to hit Mr. Haskell, according to Deputy Sheriff E. C. Ward. He is being held in the county jail until authorities learn whether Mr. Haskell will live, and waiting the outcome of an investigation by Deputy County Attorney Max C. Towle. Mr. Towle said a criminal complaint would probably be filed later.

Haskell went to Maughan's house about 2 p. m. Wednesday with a bag of potatoes, according to Mr. Maughan's story, told to Deputy Ward. Mr. Maughan said he was asked by Haskell how he felt, and replied that he didn't feel very good. When asked what he had been doing, Maughan told Haskell he had been trying to figure out how many bushels of corn Haskell had stolen from him.

Mr. Maughan then related that Haskell ordered a door opened, saying he'd throw that "bedbug" out of doors. Each told the other he wouldn't stand for being called names, and the affair ended outside the house when Maughan took a sideswipe at Haskell with a baseball bat, according to his own story, then hit him on the nose, and battered his knees "to stove them up so he'd stay at home!"

Mr. Haskell quit farming fourteen years ago on account of trouble with one of his ears which he said made noises in his head. People from Emerald said Mr. Maughan was a very quiet character and always stayed close at home.

Deputy County Attorney Max Towle said he had interviewed several people at Emerald, but was unabl eto find anyone who saw the actual encounter. Mr. Maughan said he had seen Haskell pick up a board and thought he was going to be struck with it.

BRYAN WIELDS KNIFE ON APPROPRIATIONS

Claims Recommendations Will Make a Six Million Cut.

REDUCTION FOR UNIVERSITY

Given Added Duties With $300,000 Less to Spend.

HITS RAILWAY COMMISSION

Declares That Body Has So Much Less Power Than Before That It Does Not Need the Amount Asked For.

Governor Bryan submitted to the legislature at a joint session Thursday afternoon recommendations with respect to appropriations for the biennium beginning July 1st next. The total is $21,987,554.41. He stated in his message that this is seven and a half millions less than was appropriated two years ago and nearly six millions less than at the special session of 1922, which reduced appropriations. Adding in the amount he says will be saved if the automobile license tax is cut in two, he claims savings of nearly ten millions, if his recommendations are adopted.

Insofar as appropriations are concerned, none of the amounts he recommends can be increased except by a three-fifths vote of each house. The republicans do not have a three-fifths membership of the assembly, so that the democratic membership controls the amounts to be finally fixed.

The 22 millions that the governor recommends includes over 8 millions of cash and federal aid funds and this will leave to be raised by taxation $13,663,408. Governor McKelvie recommended appropriations to be met by taxation of $12,532,487, but to this should be added the $1,500,000 Mr. Bryan recommends for road construction to be paid out of taxes, which Mr. McKelvie recommended should be raised by a gasoline tax.

The legislature, at the special session, provided for appropriations, not including cash and similar funds, of $17,214,829, which is $3,334,966 more than Governor Bryan recommends. In order to make the comparison on the basis of ordinary appropriations, there should beducted from the appropriations for the present biennium the sum of $1,950,000 for soldiers' relief and $40,000 for revision and publication of statutes, which were extraordinary appropriations and for purposes for which no appropriation is necessary for the next biennium.

How Saving is Secured.

This leaves the net saving, if Mr. Bryan's recommendations are adopted, $1,561,406. To accomplish this saving Mr. Bryan recommends that the $235,000 appropriated two years ago for bovine tuberculosis be omitted altogether, he cuts the amount to be spent on new roads $793,178, and makes a number of cuts in the appropriations for various departments. The remainder, $343,000, represents the cuts made in other departments outside of code bureaus. The university is denied the $1,100,000 increase it asked for and suffers, in addition, a cut of $300,000 in maintenance. At the same time the governor adds to its activities the legislative reference bureau and several code bureaus, without any additional appropriation. The state normals are also denied the $890,000 increase they asked.

The governor dismembers the code departments, loses some of the pieces into the discard and transfers other activities to other departments of state. As a number of these are supported by fees which are represented in the [illegible] funds referred to, it is not possible to accurately check up on the [illegible] us made. The governor figures roughly at about three-fourths of a million.

Governor Bryan expresses alarm over the fact that there is "what appears to be a deficit of $2,225,000 in the state treasury," made up largely of an overdraft of $875,000, road construction bills unpaid of $1,036,000, and $300,000 school apportionment. The treasury has $2,763,000 cash on hand, and uses part of its cash funds to take care of general fund overdrafts. Two million of this cash belongs to the the new capitol fund. This condition, it is explained by state officers, is not unusual, as the state must wait until next May for a large part of the real estate taxes. It is aggravated just now by the fact that two of the big railroad companies have not paid their taxes, but are litigating the amount.

The law enforcement fund is reduced $15,000; the library commission is abolished; the legislative reference bureau sent up to the state university, and the railway commission is hit hard. The governor refers to it as "formerly having control over railroad rates, but whose powers and duties have been greatly reduced." He cuts the commission appropriation from $145,000 to $85,000, the chief reduction being in salaries and wages and funds for special investigation.

Most of the new buildings asked for by the board of control are eliminated, and it gets but $77,000 increase instead of the $600,000 asked for. The state board of agriculture is denied all new buildings asked for.

University Appropriations.

On the matter of the university appropriation the governor said:

"The great educational institution, known as the University of Nebraska is an institution of which we are all proud and of which the people are willing to be taxed to meet its necessary needs. The university not only should be a leader along educational lines, but its business and efficiency system should be a model for other business organizations to emulate. The activities of the university are so diversified and cover such a wide area that a careful investigation of the activities of this institution and the spending agencies would require more than the entire time allotted to the incoming governor by the budget law to familiarize himself with.

"I have gone into the matter of the activities and expense for same with the secretary of the board of regents at several different conferences. The secretary, however, was not of much assistance in supplying information as to what activities could be dispensed with or what activities could be operated on less expense without injury than had been requested by the spending agency for the entire institution. The secretary advised me that he was not authorized to give any opinion as to where possible savings could be made or activities reduced with the least injury to the educational system and he also advised me that the two regents who were in the city stated that they would not assume any responsibility without the concurrence of the other members of the board of regents, which they said could not get together at this time.

"The plan of making appropriations in large lump sums to be apportioned by the board of regents as they deem advisable makes it almost impossible for a reduction in the expense of any or more of the activities of the institution.

"It appears that there are about 800 non-resident students from other states being educated at the expense of the taxpayers of Nebraska in the University of Nebraska. The cost per capita for each student at the university is about $375, and figure at that rate for the biennium there would be an additional cost for these outside students of about $600,000 for the biennium. Of course it is not possible to figure the cost of an education on a per capita basis to non-resident students, but the cost to Nebraska taxpayers is sufficiently increased on ac-

KEYS NOT BIRDS CAUSED PAINS

Faulty Translation of French Made Sensational News Story.

LONDON, (By mail)—Two French correspondents filed the same story to the Evening News here in London.

The first telegram declared a suspected burglar at Mainz, France, complained of stomach pains. An operation ensued; his stomach was opened, and sixteen nightingales were found therein."

The editors thought it was a pretty good story. Then message No. 2 arrived. It came from a correspondent who had made a better translation from French into English.

The chap with the stomachache had swallowed "sixteen skeleton keys," hoping he might cough up several and unlock his way from jail.

It was a case of French words with two meanings. Correspondent No. 1 translated "rossignol" as nightingale.

THE UNCONSCIOUS SINNER

By Hazel Deyo Batchelor

(Copyright, 1922, by The Public Ledger Company.)

Cleo Ridgefield is the type of girl who unconsciously tempts men to make love to her. When she refuses Dick Wheeler, he tries to commit suicide, and is saved by his guardian, Carey Phelps. Carey, believing Cleo to be a heartless flirt, succeeds in meeting her. He wins her heart and finally persuades her to run away and marry him. On their wedding night, in order to avenge Dick, he tells her he despises her. Cleo's first thought is to escape from him, but when he prevents that she realizes that the brave thing to do is to stay and face facts.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

The Worm Turns.

When Carey reentered the room, he was surprised to find Cleo calm and composed. She was standing by the window looking down into the street, but as he came toward her she turned and faced him.

"Good morning, Mrs. Phelps," he said lightly, just as tho that previous encounter between them had not taken place.

To his amazement she responded with a slight smile, and in a flash he realized that she had decided to make the best of things, she was going to be game. It aroused in him a feeling of admiration for her and at the same time gave him an added desire to pierce beneath her armor.

Cleo had steeled herself to meet him calmly, but as he came close to her, her nerves quivered.

Suddenly she felt that she hated him; she had never loved him; she must have been mad to think she had cared enough to marry him. But when she felt his fingers under her chin her telltale heart betrayed her. No, she did not hate him! It would have been better for her if she had.

She did not resist him, and her eyes met his bravely. Even when he stooped and kissed her again and again, she did not flinch, for she realized that this was to be part of her punishment. He did not kiss her because he wanted to caress her, but because he wanted to humiliate her. It was the most refined kind of torture because he knew so well how much she cared.

If Cleo had realized that the minute his lips had touched hers the blood had leaped in Carey's veins, if she had known that merely the touch of her deprived him of reason, and that he ceased to think clearly and to remember that he hated her, Carey's triumph would not have been so great. But as it was, it seemed to Cleo at that moment that she suffered the very dregs of humiliation in knowing that she could not kill the feeling he aroused in her even tho she knew he hated and despised her.

They went down to breakfast and were ensconced at a table by the window. The sun streamed in, but the brightness of the day only served to make the strained atmosphere between them the more obvious. After he had kissed her Carey had relapsed into a silence that was almost surly, and it wasn't until they were half thru breakfast that he spoke to her again.

"You haven't asked about the plans for the honeymoon. Wouldn't you like to know where we are going?"

"It doesn't matter, does it?"

A little flame shot into his eyes.

"Matter, why, of course, it matters I want you to approve of everything, and I knew you would want to go to a place where we could be utterly alone."

Cleo was silent and he leaned across the table and spoke softly, almost caressingly.

"Think of being alone together, away from every one. Does that make your heart beat faster now that you're my wife and belong to me?"

That shot told, for the color rushed up into Cleo's face. She was suddenly confused and shy and then in a flash she had regained her courage and was facing her tormentor bravely.

"If you believe all these things about me, Carey, I should think you would be afraid to trust yourself with me alone. I'm unscrupulous, you know. I might make you love me in spite of yourself." Her tone was as light and mocking as his own. It had come to Cleo in a flash that the one way to proceed was to fight Carey with his own weapons.

RED ARMIES ON THE MOVE

STOCKHOLM REPORTS MARCH OF SOVIET TROOPS.

Apparently Preparing to Move to Poltosk, to Point Attack on Braslav, Now Held by the Poles.

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 18.—Russia's red armies were on the move today, and a "war-like situation" has been declared in the Smolensk military district, according to Moscow reports to the Stockholm Tidningen today.

Soviet troops at Vitebsk were ordered held in readiness to march southward in full war equipment.

Pontoon bridges were thrown across the river Dwina.

The red troops were apparently preparing to move to Poltosk, from which point an attack upon Braslav, now held by the Poles, seemed likely.

There was talk of Russia aiding Germany, if the latter decided to resist the French invasion by force of arms. Apparently the present troop movements are entirely a Russian enterprise, however.

CONVENTIONS OF SOCIETY

Chancellor Schreckengast Tells Wesleyan Students of Importance of Fine Courtesies.

Chancellor Schreckengast addressed Wesleyan students Wednesday on the attitude of the college student towards the conventions of society. He said the college student should exemplify all the fine courtesies that characterize the perfect gentleman. The conventions are deposits coming from years of human experience—from the laboratory of human life. A man is not to blame for what he does not know, but he is to blame for going on in ignorance and not informing himself as to right methods of procedure.

Helpful Sermon.

A bishop of the Methodist church relates the following experience: After the service one Sunday morning he was approached by an old lady who expressed great appreciation of his discourse. "Why, bishop," she said, "you can never know what your sermon meant to me. It was just like water to a drowning man."—Boston Transcript.

HASTINGS RATE IS LOW

Aurora Considering Building Electric Transmission Line Between Two Places.

HASTINGS, Neb., Jan. 18.—In the conference between Aurora and Hastings city officials here on the application of Aurora for electric current from the Hastings municipal plant, it developed that it would cost about $40,000 to build the transmission line between the two cities. The charter governing cities of this class does not authorize the building of such extensions by municipal plants, but such plants may supply the current to lines that are brought to the city limits. The electric franchise at Aurora does not expire until 1926, so there is no immediate need of buildin gthe transmission line even if Aurora should decide to buy current here. The Aurora officials were astonished at the low rates charged for current here.

Quick Work.

"Well, want to marry my daughter, I suppose," snapped the grimpy old millionaire as he glowered at the young man before him. Then, adjusting his glasses, he added: "By the way, aren't you one of my daughter's former suitors?" "N-n-no, sir," faltered the timid youth "Well, you are now," said the old grouch as he turned away. "Get out!"—Boston Transcript.

Stern Father—I've never seen a report card like this before. Aren't you ashamed of yourself? Backward Son—Frankly, dad, I'm not. You promised me ten dollars if I'd bring home a good report and I thought you'd better economize."—Christiania Karikaturen.

A Hot Dish for a Cold Day

Eating indigestible foods that are lacking in real nutriment means lowered vitality—and that means catching the first "cold germ" that comes along.

biscuits in the oven to restore their crispness; then pour hot milk over them, adding a little cream and a little salt.

To make a real hot whole wheat porridge put the Shredded Wheat Biscuits in a small saucepan; add salt and enough water to cover the bottom of the pan; stir and boil until it thickens, then serve with milk or cream. Better than ordinary porridges for youngsters or grown ups.

Shredded Wheat is 100 per cent whole wheat, ready-cooked and ready-to-eat. It is a perfect all-day food, delicious for breakfast, or any meal. Contains all the bran you need to stimulate bowel movement.

TRISCUIT is the Shredded Wheat cracker—a real whole wheat toast—eaten with butter, soft cheese or marmalades.

Engagement Extraordinary—"The Circle" Coming to the Orpheum Monday.

The most brilliant offering of the present theatrical season will be the engagement of "The Circle" at the Orpheum Monday night when the Selwyns will present a jubilee of stars in the Somerset Maugham comedy that has proven a sensation in New York, London and Paris. Never in the history of the metropolis has a play been more enthusiastically received than that of "The Circle." The critics were unanimous in their praise, and it ran for the entire season to capacity business at the Selwyn theater.

In casting "The Circle" the Selwyns have proceeded on the principle that they should have just the right player for each part and they devoted months to securing five of the most prominent stars on the American stage to present the best play that has been produced in a decade. Included in the cast that will be seen here are Wilton Lackaye, Henry E. Dixey, Amelia Bingham, Charlotte Walker and Norman Hackett.

Seats for "The Bat" on Sale at the Orpheum Today.

"The Bat," the biggest dramatic success in years whose extraordinary success, both in New York and Chicago has resulted in new records, not only for the length of the run but for the gross receipts at the box offices, will be the attraction at the Orpheum theater on January 23 and 24.

This is good news for local theatergoers. Certainly no play in the past twenty years has aroused the interest or scored the astounding success, that has been the portion of "The Bat."

This thrilling mystery story, dramatic in the extreme and filled with quite as many laughs as it is thrills, was written by Mary Roberts Rhinehart and Avery Hopwood, both noted for their success as playwrights. It is presented under the management of Wagenhals and Kemper, producers with reputations long established for success. Seats will be placed on sale today.

ALIEN LAW CONSIDERED

CONGRESS MAY MAKE 3 PER CENT STATUTE PERMANENT.

May Be Based on Census of 1890 So as to Increase Quotas From Northern Countries of Europe.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The house immigration committee set out today to redraft the present "3 per cent" immigration statute into such shape that it will stand as a permanent law.

A score or more of changes will be considered. One of the most important is President Harding's recommendations that all aliens be required to register several times a year so a close tab can be kept on their activities and the pace at which they assimilate American ideals.

Another major proposal to be taken up by the committee is that the "3 per cent" law hereafter be based on the census of 1890 instead of the census of 1910. Going back to the 1890 census would greatly increase the quotas for the northern countries of Europe, which would supply desirable immigrants and at the same time reduce materially the quotas for the countries of southern Europe.

Among other changes to be considered are:

More drastic penalties for steamship companies which bring over aliens who obviously are not qualified for admission.

Setting of a definite numerical quota for some of the smaller European countries, and a new rule providing that immigration flowing from those countries must be spread out evenly each year over the months.

Provision that alien wives of American citizens can enter at any time, tho the quota from her country may be exhausted.

Provision that children born in some country other than the country of parents can come in as from the nation of their parents.

The committee does not intend to consider further at this session the proposal that the army intelligence tests be applied to all incoming aliens.

COST OF CORN PRODUCTION

Farmers Unable to Agree, But Estimates Range a Little Over 30 Cents a Bushel.

Several lively arguments were started at the farm bureau farm management school, being conducted by E. L. Taylor of the college of agriculture in Saunders county when an attempt was made to figure out the average cost of production of an acre of corn.

No two of the twenty-five farmers present could agree on the cost of the different operations required in the production of the crop. To get definite cost of production records several of those present are going to keep farm account books in 1923.

Lessons in keeping farm accounts were given and a dummy set of accounts was made by each of the men present.

Using averages where cost could not be agreed upon the following was figured out as a cost estimate for corn.

Forty acre field—thirty-five bushel yield.

PLANS FOR A BIG SHOW

Two Hundred Local Legionnaires to Promote Advance Sale of Vaudeville Tickets Friday.

The American Legion Show committee has perfected plans for the sale of tickets for the big local talent show to be put on February 12 and 13. Two-hundred Legionaires will meet at the chamber of commerce at 1 o'clock Friday and start out to sell tickets. The business part of the city has been divided into districts. Every office and store building will be canvassed, every business man, clerk, bookkeeper, stenographer and employ, as well as employer will be called upon to buy a ticket for the big show.

Prof. R. D. Scott of the university of Nebraska is directing the acts, together with Eugene Holland and George Fawell. Mr. Scott was director of the university pageant and kosmet plays, has had fourteen years of stage experience, and at present is professor of English literature at the state university. Mr. Holland and Mr. Fawell have been connected in an executive way with all previous Legion shows.

The show this year promises to be the greatest local talent show ever put over. To date twenty-nine acts have been submitted to the committee to make their selection from. The acts are of a greater variety than ever before. Some unusual dancing numbers, as well as singing and musical numbers, have been chosen. The Lincoln Legion band, which won second prize at the Kansas City convention will give an entertaining number. The people taking part are all experienced, and under the direction of Mr. Scott will make this one of the best shows of the season.

The American Legion is putting on this show with all local talent, and not "one shiny dime" is to be spent for directing or promoting the show. Every cent will go to the local post to help carry on its activities for the year.

The prices of the tickets will be $1, tax exempt. Each ticket is numbered and countersigned by Clarence C. Becker, secretary of the local post.

DR. KENT POSTPONES VISIT

Yale Professor Telegraphs That Engagements in Michigan Prevent His Coming at This Time.

A telegram was received Thursday morning by Chancellor Avery from Prof. Charles F. Kent of Yale university cancelling his visit to Lincoln this week. Dr. Kent is assisting the university of Michigan in launching a compaign for funds to establish an interdenominational school of religion.

The telegram was in reply to a wire from Chancellor Avery asking if Dr. Kent expected to be in Lincoln Friday, the duty mentioned in a letter received previously. Tentative arrangements had been made at the University of Nebraska in a conference Wednesday between the chancellor and student pastors for a meeting Friday evening to which about fifty prominent ministers of all creeds, professors and laymen would be invited to discuss religious instruction with Dr.

Of the fifty-nine arrests, thirteen were hanged, eight found guilty but insane at the time of trial, fourteen were accused of manslaughter, one or malicious wounding, fourteen were acquitted and seven were found insane while awaiting trial.

NORA BAYES ADOPTS GIRL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Nora Bayes, musical comedy and vaudeville star, has legally adopted a three-year-old girl, who will hereafter be known as Lenora Bayes. In the proceedings for the adoption, Miss Bayes said her income was over $10,000 a year and that she had had the child since last April. Miss Bayes was recently divorced from her fourth husband, Arthur A. Gordon. He obtained the divorce.

DEBT GROUPS DO NOT AGREE

HOPES FOR TENTATIVE UNDERSTANDING ARE POOR.

Final Effort to Be Made Before British Mission Leaves for Home—English Suggestion Is Rejected.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Hopes for a tentative agreement between the British and American debt funding commissions appeared dim today as the two bodies held their last session before the departure of the British mission for London.

A final effort was to be made to bring about an agreement on the chief point at issue—the interest to be paid by Britain on her war debt of approximately $5,000,000,000 in principal and interest.

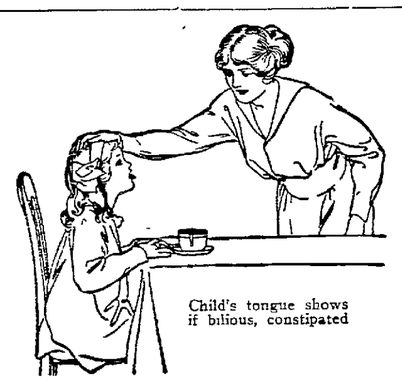

The British proposed 3 per cent, it was understood and the Americans flatly rejected the suggestion.

It was the witching hour when all was hushed and dark. Suddenly the midnight stillness was broken by a crash from upstairs. "G-g-g-good Lord, what was that, dud-dud-darling?" exclaimed the timid young Adonis. "Merely father dropping a hint," she replied, snuggling closer.—Yale Record.

MOB LAW IS GAINING WAY

NORTHERN ARKANSAS COMMUNITIES ARE TERRORIZED.

Striking Rail Employes Flogged at Various Points Along Missouri and North Arkansas Railroad.

HARRISON, Ark., Jan. 18.—Mob law spread in northern Arkansas today.

Striking railroad employes have been flogged at Leslie and other points along the Missouri and North Arkansas railroad following outbreaks there in which E. C. Gregor was lynched and twenty persons were beaten and deported.

The entire community was heavily armed ready to enforce decrees of the "citizens' committee" and "citizen's court," set up by the mob of business men and farmers who amassed here Monday to prevent paralysis of train service on the railroad. Shotguns were boldly carried thru the streets and revolvers slung from leather holsters hung at the sides of others.

Harrison was quiet on the surface today as the "citizens' committee" continued rounding up strikers and questioning them regarding burned bridges and other alleged acts of sabotage. Some were flogged after the quiz and others were ordered to leave.

Wild rumors were heard on all sides. One was that armed men were coming over the hills from Missouri to oust the rulers here.

The state legislature has ordered a probe of the lynching of Gregor and floggings of strikers. The investigation was expected to get under way tomorrow.

A grand jury investigation made under the eyes of the mob returned sixteen indictments on charges of bridge burning and others against the railroad.

Sheriff Maddox and a corps of deputies before sun up began hunting the hills for the indicted men.

The "citizens' court" and "citizens' committee" were reported working with the approval of the circuit court The twelve men on the "citizens' court" were said to be under oath as officers of Boone county and scores from the "committee" carry commissions as special deputy sheriffs, they said. Sheriff Maddox indicated such an arrangement had been made.

LAMA PRIESTS ON STRIKE

Devils and Evil Spirits May Do Away With Republic, for All Medicine Men Care.

PEKIN.—(By Mail.)—Devils, hobgoblins and evil spirits generally may devour the Chinese republic, and all its people for all the Lama priests are concerned. They are on a strike because their allotments have not been paid, and they are going to cast out no more devils until the coppers are delivered at the Lama temples.

Lamaism is the branch of Buddhism that developed in Thibet and Mongolia where every family must give one of every five children to the priesthood Their particular business is donning wierd clothes and frightening masks and driving out devils. This is done on holidays or whenever the devils become so numerous and the true believers think it wise to give over a little money for the devil dance.

Like everyone else dependent on the government for groceries and clothes, the Lama are months behind in their income. Peking has about 7,000 of them and these men elected a small committee of 175 to call on the government and demand the pay. The government in some way found $350. This money converted into coppers and cash would have given each Lama nine coppers. The money was paid to the Lama who prints the paper prayers for the wheens and he withheld $200 for his printing bills.

The printer is comparatively safe, for he can chase out his own devils, but the Lamas are taking it out on the government, which will be besieged by the common people if no devils are chased. It is up to the government to make the printer settle, or get more money and under present conditions either procedure will be about as easy as collecting taxes from a Chinese politician.

In the meantime the devils are rampant.

HIGHWAY SYSTEM SUCCESS

Bainbridge Colby Declares It Is Only Public Ownership Experiment Not Failure.

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—The nation's highway system is the only successful public ownership experiment ever attempted on a large scale, Bainbridge Colby, former secretary of state, declared in an address before the American road builders congress here.

"Highways, altho publicly owned, have the unqualified approval of the people," Colby said. "We must see that our stewardship of the highways does not bring public management into disrepute as has been the case in other attempts of the government to run industries."

Colby declared the present federal aid policy was the best plan for building roads possible and that any effort to change it "should be viewed with suspicion."

LATE NEWS OF YESTERDAY

DISAPPROVE OF THE POST DATED CHECK

Retail Credit Men Favor Open Account for Deferred Payment—Credit Rating Must Be More Accurate.

Insurance, post-dated checks, credit ratings and C. O. D. orders were the subjects discussed at the regular monthly meeting of the retail credit men at the Grand hotel Wednesday evening. About fifty were present. It was an all-association program and was featured by lively discussion on the points brbought up. Mrs J. Benner presided.

C. W. Hyland spoke on use and occupance insurance, he brought out the desirability of this protection which is just coming into considerable popularity at this time.

The subject of post-dated checks was considered from three angles, the "bankers view" was presented by Bryon Dunn, the "merchant view" by O. R Paist and the "credit grantors view" by Miss Annette Martin. Mr. Dupnn said that there was no value in the post-dated check, the use of it was bad business, and caused far more trouble than it was worth. He favoreded some other method of handling the deferred payment. Mr Paist spoke in favor of the post-dated check in so far that it is preferable to the check that is dated on the day issued but is supposed to be held until some later date. However in case of a bad debt he said it is much better to have the obligation in the form of an open account than any form of note, as that take it form the status of a "nescessities of life" obligation and make it impossible to recover from the wife on estate. He believes that it is preferable to open an acount than accept a post dated check. Miss Martin expressed herself as being heartily oposed to the post-dated check and said that she would always rather take chances with an open account

In speaking of credit ratings, John Drennen said that merchants should be more careful in turning in their ratings to make sure that the list is complete. Every credit customer should be rated by every merchant with whom he has an account no matter how good or how poor his standing may be. This is the only way to secure an accurate blue book. H. R. LaTowsky said that merchants should be fair in their ratings The customer is judged by the record shown in the rating turned in by the credit men.

The Blue book is the first thing referred to in opening an account and it must be accurate to be fair to both customer and credit-man. The credit-man must not let a personal or private grudge influence the rating turned in. On the other hand he must not give a man credit for more than he is entitled to as this lowers his respect for his credit standing. Max Meyer of the Nebraska Credit Bureau requested the credit men that their lists be complete, and their ratings acurate. He said that the Golden Rule should be aplied, if a man has paid he should have credit for it and if he has not the other credit men should know.

E. W Nelson stated that when at all possible the customer should be consulted before anything is sent "C. O. D. by request." The drivers should be given a special, already made out receipt and should retain his original delivery sheet, to return with the money. This prevents much confusion in crediting due to mistakes in copying names. He thought is was a good idea to treat "approval" orders in the same manner as positive bon a fide purchase and charge them up as such. Then if the goods are returned, they can be credited to the sustomer's account.

NERVOUS WOMAN COMPLETE WRECK

Tells How She Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Indianapolis, Indiana.—"Now I want to tell you just what induced me to take your medicine. It seemed that I had some kind of weakness so that I could not carry a child its full time. The last time I was troubled this way I had a nervous breakdown and was a complete wreck. The doctor thought I would not live, and if I did that I would never be well and strong again. But I told them I was going to get well, that I was not going to die just then. My husband got me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took six bottles of it. I soon got strong again and had three more children. I have recommended the Vegetable Compound ever since, and if you could see me now you would think I had always been well."—Mrs. MARY F. HERRICK, 234 Detroit St., Indianapolis, Ind.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent medicine for expectant mothers and should be taken during the entire period. It has a general effect to strengthen and tone up the entire reproductive system, so that it may work in every respect effectually as nature intends.

ELECTION BALLOTS ARE TURNED DOWN

Court Holds They Cannot Be Admitted in Wilson's Suit for Recount of Votes of Recent Election.

All the ballots returned to the county clerk after the last general election have been held inadmissable as evidence in the election contest waged against County Attorney Charles E. Matson by Wade A. Wilson, apparently defeated candidate of the democrats and progressives. Mr. Matson's attorney declared that the fact that a majority of the boxes were unsealed while within reach of private hands for a time made it impossible for anyone to swear that they were the original ballots in the same condition as when cast.

It had been testified that 50 per cent of the ballots returned to the county clerk after the election were not returned under seal, as required by the law governing election boards, and that in a number of the boxes that were sealed, the poll books had been sealed with the ballots instead of in the envelope on top of the box, thus forcing the county clerk to unseal the boxes to get at the book. By the time this was done only about twenty of the ballots cast boxes were still sealed, when all should have been sealed.

It was stated by the judge when he sustained the motion that he did not attach any blame to the county clerk, but placed it upon the election boards, which did not properly prepare the ballots for return. The fact that many of the boxes were unsealed in transit from the precinct polling places to the clerk's office, and that they lay in the offices several days afterward unsealed, left an opportunity for anyone who wanted to make alterations.

The case was not dismissed Wednesday evening, but was left hanging in midair. Attorney C. A. Sorensen, representing Mr. Wilson, stated that he wished time to think matters over before taking any further steps.

Carl Schmidt sr., who was County Clerk J. B. Morgan's assistant during the election and afterward, testified that he had found one box of ballots lying in the hall of the court house after the election, and that two or three more boxes had been found down in the cellar.

STIRS UP A HORNET'S NEST

Introducer of Anti-Klan Measure Undergoes Questioning.

Representative Robert Strehlow of Douglas county stirred the house into lively debate in committee of the whole Wednesday afternoon while H. R. No, 56, anti ku klux klan measure, was under consideration. The opinion was generously expressed that the author of the bill brought it upon himself. The house sat silent while the measure was read article by article Mr. Strehlow followed his motion to advance to third reading by an explanatory address which seemingly aroused opposition. A roll call was demanded on the motion to advance and the vote was 55 in the affirmative and 42 in the negative.

The purpose of the bill is to prevent persons other than officers of the law from imposing penalties or enforcing orders, to prevent persons from meeting in disguise for the purpose of carrying out threats or of holding pretended hearings to determine the guilt or innocence of persons.

"There are in this city, in Omaha and in other cities of the state so-called direct action societies which are founded on hate and prejudice," said the introducer. "They include in their membership men who believe that it is necessary for them to form an invisible government."

He said that a member of one of the "organizations" visited his apartment in Omaha to solicit members The solicitor, he said, approached a neighbor who is a Mason and asked this question:

"How would you like to join an organization that stands for everything that Masonry does?"

This brought Representative Whitehead to his feet.

"Do you wish to spread the inference that the Masons are back of the ku klux klan?" he asked.

Mr. Strehlow represents a district in which there are many Jews, Catholics and colored citizens

"If I were a Jew or a Catholic or if I were a negro," he said, "I would wage a war of extermination against all organizations which questioned my rights as an American citizen and swore hostility toward me. We will have no Mer Rouge incident in Nebraska because we will take the stitch in time."

Nebraska Railway Commission Tells Missouri Pacific Five Hundred More Are Needed.

A request for refrigerator cars for the movement of seed potatoes to the south before the weather becomes warmer was received by the railway commission. The Burlington road said it would send twenty-five refrigerator cars to that point Wednesday night.

SOUTH IS BEING TRIED AT BEATRICE

State Indicates by Questions in Examining Jurors That Capital Punishment Will Be Asked for Killing of Wolf.

BEATRICE, Neb Jan. 17.—First proceedings in the trial of Francis South, charged with the murder of Charles Wolt, started Wednesday. The session was devoted entirely to the examination of jury men Twelve members of the regular panel were questioned during the forenoon Two were challenged by the state and two by the defense

The fact that Attorney Vansey, former county attorney who is assisting County Attorney Mattoon, for the state, asked jurors if they had any conscientious scriples against the death penalty indicates that the state will ask for capital punishment

Because of the crowded condition of the court room, Judge Colby made a ruling that no babies be admitted during the progress of the trial, also that no persons would be permitted ot eat luncheon in the court room in order to hold their seats.

DOESN'T BREAK THE RECORD

January Weather Pleasant, But Twenty-one Years Ago First Half Was Warmer.

The first seventeen days of January this year have been rather unusual but the records show one year that was nicer, 1902. In that year also there was no rain or snow during the period considered.

Mean temperatures for the first seventeen days in January for the years mentioned are:

1902	34.1	1921	32.4
1923	33.6	1914	31.0
1906	33.1	1922	27.6

The average for the past thirty-five years of these seventeen days is 22.1 This year has averaged a daily excess of 11.5 and is among the pleasantest of the thirty five years, but not quite a record breaker

WOULD BRAND STATE AUTOS

MUST CARRY DESIGN TO MAKE THEM EASILY RECOGNIZED.

Representative Bock Wants Public to Know Movements of All Cars Conducted at Expense of the Taxpayer.

Representative Bock, house democrat, and others propose a law requiring the branding of all state cars. The bill aims at joyriding at the state's expense. The measure requires reports of all state owned machines showing original cost, depreciation, mileage, gasoline, oil and repairs to be made to the secretary of tsate by department heads.

The purpose, according to Mr. Bock is not only to prevent joyriding at the state's expense, but to put the brand on Mr. Inspector so that when he drives into a community, the community may know that he has arrived. An exception is made as to autos used in law enforcement work.

A bill by Representatives Vance and Colman reduces registration fees for motor vehicles and limits exemptions to police and fire vehicles. A bill introduced requires employers to give due notice before temporarily laying off employes.

A bill by Representative Keifer authorizes the state trade and commerce department to take charge of insolvent state banks and wind up the institutional affairs before drawing on the state guaranty fund. He figures that by releasing the drain on bank assets for maintenance of the guaranty fund, interest rates to farmers will be lowered.

Members of th commission will receive $10 per day while at work. Fees collected to go into the general fund.

SIDE TALKS

(By Ruth Cameron.)

Old Friends and Old Books.

I have just been re-reading a book which I have read many times before.

A friend who found me poring over the shabby volume asked me if there were not enough new books to read that I must go back and read that over for the Nth time.

One might as well ask why one should enjoy being with an old friend when there are so many new people worth knowing whom one might be cultivating.

I love to re-read a book that can stand it, quite as well as I do to read something new. Especially if it is a book that I have owned and marked on previous occasions, or that some other member of the household or some friend has marked.

Reading With a Pencil.

Yes, I freely admit that I have that habit, called reprehensible by some, of reading with a pencil. I love to mark or annotate favorite passages at one period of my life and reread them at another. And as for being cruel to the book,—what is the book but the author and I don't believe he minds. Indeed I will wager he is pleased to have me take that vital an interest in him.

Of course a great many books cannot stand rereading. They shrink and diminish and cheapen and leave you wondering what you cared for much for

But other books grow more full of meaning with every year you live

"An old picture" wrote Harriet Beecher Stowe once, "a tragedy which I knew by heart, a hackneyed romance, a talk with a friend, afforded me surprise. Such things had a new meaning. I knew then what experience is and I saw that sorrow teaches truth."

But it is not only sorrow that teaches truth. It is all living.

And if a book has the elements of truth each year of life gives us power to see more in it.

Does This Happen to You?

This is preeminently true of the Bible. There are certain passages of the Bible that I have read a hundred times. And every now and then from one of these very familiar passages, a verse leaps out at me with a totally new meaning. Some experience in my own live has illuminated it as a flash of lightning illumines some single bit of landscape. Before I only looked at it, now I see it.

And the book that I was rereading when my friend rebuked me was something I have read at least a dozen times: Stevenson's "Virginibus Peurisque." If you haven't read it by any chance I wish you would go and get it off your shelves or from the library or from the book shop (it's worth owning) and read it. And then take care to reread it at least once in five years. It's an essay on love and marriage, as doubtless you know, and it's just packed with things that leap out at you as the years go by and you have fewer theories about life and more experience of it.

Ought to Be a Law.

Every young man and maiden in the falling-in-love stage ought to read it, and every couple ought to read it at the end of a year of married life, and at five year intervals thereafter.

Really I think there ought to be a law enforcing such readings for the chance of reducing the divorce rate.

Absurd? Not half so much so as lots of laws that get passed.

REALTORS ASK REGULATION

Introduce License Bill Which Was Defeated by Nebraska Legislature at 1921 Session.

The bill to license real estate dealers and regulate their actions by a commission appointed by the governor which was defeated two years ago made its reappearance Thursday in the state senate in a modified form. It is S. F. 74, introduced by Allen and others.

Reed introduced a bill which the state association of pharmacists desire passed. Among other changes it increases the annual license fee from $1 to $2. This fee now goes to the state. It is a fee that many druggists contend should be abolished entirely after the initial fee of $15 has been paid for examination and license. The druggists behind the bill are not satisfied with the present law which merely confers power upon an examining board of druggists to pass upon applications for new licenses.

The following bills were introduced:

S. F. 71, by Reed. Creates independent state board of pharmacy to license pharmacists and assist in enforcing law regulating pharmacy under department of public welfare. Leaves administrative powers with the department. Increases pharmacists' annual fee from $1 to $2.

S. F. 72, by Banning. Insurance examiners employed by department of trade and commerce shall be certified accountants or graduates of a bookkeeping and accounting school, and have at least two years' experience in accounting; daily hotel and railroad fire limited to $5, expense vou here must be signed by officer of the insurance company examined.

S. F. 73, by Keogh. Permits the Nebraska Press association to become a corporation.

S. F. 74, by Allen and others. Creates a state real estate commission, and requires license for every dealer and salesman. Commissioners must appoint three persons on commission who have been realtors in Nebraska for at least ten years, to draw $10 a day and expenses while on official duties. Application for license must be accompanied by $1,000 bond.

S. F. 75, by Thielsen. Requires the name of the township or precinct of the owner to appear in the application for auto registration.

"How old are you, miss?" "I have seen four and twenty summers." "And how many years were you blind?"—Munich Fliegende Blaetter.

"FIRST LOVE"

The Story of a Childhood Romance that Struggled Against the Temptations of the New York Business World.

(Copyright.)

By Caroline Crawford

Jessie Jackson and Peter Manton as childhood sweethearts lived in adjoining apartment houses, they played together upon the city streets but did not realize how deep was their love until they entered high school together. Their families considered it "puppy love," but when Jessie and Peter enter the business world they still continue to be lovers. Others come into their lives and many instances arise which might have parted them. Begin this story today and see if a deep love, begun in childhood days, can survive temptations to thwart it.

Jessie Takes Things in Her Own Hands.

Things looked very blue to Jessie up in her room the evening after her "break" with her father. A long translation of Latin into English called to her from her desk, but her heart was heavy and she had many problems concerning her own life which seemed far more important.

To begin with, she rather liked Clyde Nelson. The older man, the sophisticated man of the world appealed to her, but when her father told her she must marry him in a cold, matter of fact way, the break had come. She would have been glad to have considered this bachelor as a good friend, but if it must lead to matrimony her heart rebelled. Girls were not told they must wed men in this age.

The next matter which troubled her was her quarrel with Peter. Peter was jealous of Nelson and consequently Peter was going with the prettiest girl in the high school. As matters stood she had quarreled with her father, insisted she would not go with Nelson any more, and now she didn't even have Peter to consult.

There was but one thing to do. She would leave home! She wouldn't go to business and quit school or really be rash, but she would take up her abode with a maidenly aunt in the city. She would tell Peter that she had broken off with Nelson and once more life would be smooth.

Therefore, instead of buckling down to her Latin, Jessie busied herself in packing a large suitcase. A school frock, a dance gown and plenty of middy blouses made the old leather affair bulge. Then she loaded her vanity case with girlish accessories and soon she was ready. Quietly, as stealthily as a burglar, she tip-toed down the front stairs, and as she reached the lowest step she heard her father say, "Well, my daughter is going to do as I say and that is all there is to it."

Jessie smiled as she cautiously closed the front door and found herself on the porch. Ten minutes walk and she would be at the station.

She was just on time to catch the theater train. People were all about her chatting and laughing, and ready for an evening's diversion. She felt that she was doing wrong in leaving home like this but, after all, she wanted to show her father that he could not dictate to her in her love affairs. It was her only way out.

She found her aunt in a highly excited condition. "What on earth does this mean?" she asked. "Jessie, are you going on the stage or deliberately running away from home like a wayward and obstinate girl?"

"I'm running away from home!" laughed Jessie.

"Had another runout with your father?"

"Just the first; I didn't wait for 'another,' Aunt Sadie."

"But your mother has told me several times that he objected to your going with a school friend and had planned to marry you off to a very wealthy young man."

"A very 'eligible' young man, that's the word. But since I have something to say about this I'm going to stay with you a few weeks and let things blow over."

"You mean you are going to stay if I permit it," sedately corrected Aunt Sadie. "Meantime I'll call up your mother and see what she has to say about your being here."

But while Aunt Sadie was busy using her telephone Jessie slipped out to the drugstore telephone and told Peter to come to her aunt's home at once.

HERRIN CASE TO THE JURY

JUDGE INSTRUCTS TWELVE HEARING MINE CASE.

Finding to Be Made Separately for Each Defendant—Slap Taken at the United Mine Workers.

MARION, Ill., Jan. 18.—The first Herrin massacre case went to the jury shortly after 11 a. m.

The jury was sent to deliberate on the fate of the five men charged with the murder of Howard Hoffman after lengthy instructions from Judge Dewitt T. Hartwell.

MARION, Ill., Jan. 18.—The first of he cases resulting from the Herrin nassacre will go to the jury today.

Judge Hartwell prepared to charge he jury as court opened today and it was expected his address would take only a few hours.

The quick ending of the case resulted from the action of the defense in waiving its right to argument.

"It is murder or nothing," Hartwell told the jury.

"It is not against the law of Illinois for a man to mine coal without belonging to the united mine workers o[illegible] and it a man be assaulted and killed for this and for no other reason, the killing is unlawful.

"You are to fix the penalty at death, imprisonment for life or for a period of years not less than fourteen, if you find any or all of the defendants guilty.

"If one of the accused men committed the crime and the other defendants stood by, aided or encouraged the crime, it is your duty to find all the defendants guilty."

The court instructed the jury to return a separate verdict for each defendant.

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply put two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water, then moisten your hair with water and rub it in. It will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few cunces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.—Advertisement.

BAD BREATH

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick results through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 15c and 30c.—Adv.

Fred Westrope and wife will lead the grand march. Governor C. W. Bryan, Mayor Zehrung, Chief of Police Johnstone and members of the city council have been invited to attend. IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache often means you have been eating too much meat.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. An excess of meat may form uric acid, which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus often ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia water drink. Drink lots of soft water.—Advertisement.

DICKY MAKES A COMMON MISTAKE.

ONE day as Dicky wandered over the prairie he spied a dear little furry animal sitting on a mound of dirt. He hid behind a bush so as not to frighten the little fellow.

"Pshaw! You needn't hide," chuckled a merry voice. The little furry creature lifted his paw and shook it in the direction of the bush. "Come on out, Sonny. I see you. I'm not like most of my relatives. I'm not afraid of you in the least."

Dicky came from behind the tree and laughed.

"Well, you're a funny prairie dog," he called, "for the very second they spy a boy they generally run as fast as they can."

"What, prairie dogs?" chuckled the furry little animal. "I've seen a great many of them, but I hadn't noticed—"

"Why, aren't you a prairie dog?" Dicky asked. "I thought surely you were a prairie dog."

"I'm sorry," laughed his companion, "but I'm not. I'm a marmot, or, in common everyday talk, I'm a woodchuck—just a plain old woodchuck."

"Well, I'll eat my hat if you're not built like a prairie dog," Dicky laughed. "He has the same stout body, short tail and round head that you have. Why, I would have bet my last cent you were one."

"I'm glad I'm not," laughed Mr. Woodchuck. "I've been called so many things, I'm beginning to think I don't know just who I am. Now, some folks call me a ground-hog. Think of that! I'll admit I do live under the ground most of my time, but I can't say that I eat much, so why call me a hog? Ground-hog! Pshaw! The title makes me shiver.

Then, to think folks say that if I come out the second of February and see my shadow, I go back, and that makes a late spring. Did you ever hear anything so ridiculous in all your life? Just as if we fellows had anything to do with the weather!"

"How did they ever come to say that about you fellows?" Dicky asked. "I've heard it many times."

"Just so as to have some one to blame for the late spring, I guess," chuckled Mr. Woodchuck. "The truth of the whole thing is, I get so tired of sleeping and so hungry during the winter months that I grow restless and hungry, and get up to find something to eat. If the weather's just right, I don't go back to bed again, but if it's still cold and snowy, I crawl back and keep warm. Cloudy or sunshiny weather doesn't make any difference. If it's warm outside, I stay up—if not, I go back to bed."

"Just as I do in the winter time," Dicky laughed. "Mornings when it's real cold, I stay in bed longer than I do when it's warm."

"Well, it's a funny old world," Mr. Woodchuck chuckled merrily. "But it doesn't hurt me any—those silly tales about me. Let them blame it onto me, I don't care." And he gathered up a pocketful of acorns and hurried away.

Dicky watched him out of sight, then he shook his head.

"He's a funny little fellow," he mused, "but he surely did look like a prairie dog."

MY MARRIAGE PROBLEMS

Revelations of a Wife

The Way Madge Met Dicky's Complaints and Censure.

DICKY and Harry Underwood evidently had been watching for us at the Nantucket railroad station, for both of them were at the door of the car almost as Brother Bill Boyce threw it open. They helped us to alight while Brother Bill busied himself with our luggage, and Dicky put on his most formal and courteous air when we were all upon the platform.

"My dear," he said, "will you permit me to present Don Ramon Almirez? We have found that we are quite old acquaintances. Miss Foster, may I introduce Don Ramon Almirez?"

Harry Underwood murmured his responses in so grandiose and composed a manner that no one could suspect him of knowing how inwardly convulsed Dicky and I were. The introductions over, he immediately devoted himself to Claire with a most impressive air, and I guessed that he was giving Dicky the chance of an uninterrupted few minutes with me.

It was a chance which I did not contemplate with any degree of pleasure. The two men had either emerged from their interview without a quarrel, or else had mended it whole-heartedly before our arrival. This meant that Dicky had received the other man's warning about the danger of my going about alone, without the counter-irritant of resentful anger against the man who had given it. I might expect all sorts of fussiness, I told myself, and of annoying opposition to my work with Lillian.

Dicky did not immediately turn to me, however. Instead he spoke to Brother Bill.

Brother Bill Helps.

"Can you stick around till the train comes in?" he asked. "The ladies are a bit nervous, because they are so anxious to get to New York, and you know what women are"—this with a lowered voice and the lofty understanding of one man to another—"They figure that if there should be an accident to delay the train materially they would want you to take them back to the other road. You're not in any hurry, are you?"

"Not a bit," Brother Bill returned cheerily.

"That's settled them. Now, if you'll tell me the total damage up to train time I'll get this off my mind. If the train is late I'll add more, of course."

"I guess we needn't worry about that," the driver returned, and named a sum which seemed absurdly small both to Dicky's ears and mine.

"Well, nobody can call you a profiteer," Dicky said heartily, counting some small bills and handing them to the man.

"I hope not," Brother Bill replied with dignity. "Here, you've given me too much." He held out one of the bills.

"Nonsense!" Dicky replied.

"An Honest Geezer."

"I don't want what I haven't earned," the driver replied stubbornly, and Dicky took the bill back, and opened his cigar case.

"At least you'll have some smokes on me," he said heartily.

"Thanks," Brother Bill replied, selecting one, although Dicky pressed more upon him.

"There's an honest geezer," Dicky commented, as we strolled away down the platform.

"He's splendid," I returned enthusiastically. "But I think it's in the air up here," and I related the incident of the old mountaineer refusing to take money for bringing me Lillian's telegram until I had coaxed him into receiving it as a "present." Dicky's eyes narrowed as I talked, and when I had finished, he said a bit nastily.

"So that's the way of it. Lil wired you that the dear Doc was on the way, and you decided to protect reckless husband at any cost. I suppose I ought to be thankful for such careful guardianship on the part of you and old Lil, for no doubt ferocious Herbie would have made two bites of me, but I'm not particularly grateful, nevertheless. Did it ever occur to you that a man of spirit might not relish having his decisions made for him?"

His voice was heavy with irony, and I felt the bludgeon. But I threw back my head with equal hauteur.

"Did it ever occur to you that a woman of spirit might not relish being asked to submit every emergency decision to another, even her own husband, as if she were an underpaid clerk? I was on the ground, you were not. It was not a matter I could explain over the telephone, and—I had gone through too much in avoiding publicity over this thing to let your possible encounter with Dr. Pettit spoil it. I am sorry if you are annoyed, but I do not think you have any justification for it."

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl 19 years old. I am considered attractive and refined by all of my friends. I went around with many young men until recently, when my mother died.

Now, my friends want to call again, but my father is so strict that he forbids them to call. He nearly insulted one young man when he asked to escort me home from church one night.

My father thinks a great deal of me, yet he refuses to let me enjoy the company of my young friends, which makes me very sad.

A certain young man has asked if he could call regularly to see me, but I had to refuse because I didn't want to cause either one of us any embarrassment, and I have too much pride to tell him my father objects. What am I to do?

Now, don't tell me to have a talk with Father, as it won't do any good, for he refuses to speak when I ask him why I can't enjoy young men's company. I have no sisters or relatives to go to for advice, so I hope I can depend on you.

CINDERELLA.

CINDERELLA: Perhaps your father is not quite himself, my dear, since your mother's death. Be very kind and patient with him. After a while go to him in an affectionate way and ask him again. Perhaps you will have more success then.

As to the young man, be honest with him, and tell him exactly why you cannot have him call regularly. He will like you much better for being frank.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am 16 years of age, and am desperately in love with a young man of about 18. He has shown me in many ways that he loves me.

He takes me wherever I want to go, and brings me home from church, but he tells me to go in, as my mother may not like it if I stay out late.

My mother likes the young man, but she thinks I am too young to go about with him. WAZZLE.

WAZZLE: Give up the young man until your mother allows you to receive him properly in your home, my dear.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a woman 26 years old, and am the mother of three children. I am living with my second husband. My husband doesn't seem to enjoy his home at all. He fusses all the time when he is here. And I hate to break up our home on account of my children.

I can't live this way. I talk to him and try to get him to stop fussing. I don't go anywhere unless it is to my mother's, and he fusses about that. My life is so miserable. I want your advice about what is best for me to do.

BROKEN-HEARTED ONE.

BROKEN-HEARTED ONE: Determine to make yourself, your children and your home so attractive that your husband will have no cause for complaint, my dear. Act toward him as you did before you were married, and see if you can't change his present irritability. Good luck!

Don't break up your home, but make up your mind to get the better of this situation. You can do it if you try.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her, in care of this office.

HEROINES OF HISTORY

Significant Incidents in the Lives of Famous Women

By MARK STUYVESANT

What Lady Grey's Royal Blood Brought the Nine Days' Queen.

IF Lady Jane Grey had not been the great-granddaughter of King Henry VII., and the great-niece of Henry VIII., of England, she might have lived the wholesome, happy life of a young English girl.

But because she had this strain of royal blood in her veins her life was difficult and her death tragic.

Before Henry VII. died he mentioned Lady Jane as a possible heir to the throne of England. This announcement fired her father, the Marquis of Dorset, with ambition. He really did not love his daughter very much. In her he saw only an instrument to elevate his position and increase his power.

To equip her properly to be a queen, the little girl's education was started. And it was a rigorous schooling through which she was obliged to struggle. There was not much time for play. She did not have the fun for which she naturally was hungry. Instead of romping and playing with her dolls, she spent hours in studying not only all the modern languages, but wrestling with Hebrew and even Chaldee.

Lady Jane had a natural social gift. When she was ten years old, her beauty and charm won for her many friends at court. So attractive was this little lady that the Dowager Queen became fascinated with her and asked to have her attached to her person as a lady-in-waiting. Lady Jane remained in this office at court for several years.

When Lady Jane was fourteen her tricky father was made Duke of Suffolk, and was summoned to court. He thought his charming daughter could help him. So Lady Jane went to court again.

At this time, another schemer was at court in the person of the Duke of Northumberland, the most powerful man in England. He met the brilliant Lady Grey, recognized her possibilities, and immediately visualized her as the wife of his son Guilford. He knew that this girl might one day be Queen of England, and it would be very convenient to be her father-in-law.

The marriage of these children, who did not love each other, was celebrated with much pomp and ceremony in the palace of Edward VI.

Unfortunately for Lady Jane, Edward VI. died seven weeks after her marriage. Before his death he signed a document naming Jane as his successor.

But two other women claimed the throne. They were his sisters, Mary Tudor, afterward known as "Bloody Mary," and Elizabeth, famed as "The Virgin Queen." Edward had not mentioned them as heirs, because his father, Henry VIII., the much-married king, had declared them illegitimate.

Immediately on the King's death, Lady Jane's ambitious father and father-in-law urged her to accept the crown. She had a presentiment that it would bring her nothing but sorrow, and pitcously begged to be allowed to decline it.

But Lady Jane's scheming relatives insisted, and the coronation took place.

The result was war. Mary Tudor's friends raised an army which was powerful. Northumberland's was weak. Whipped and cornered, Northumberland turned sheepishly and joined the powerful faction. He himself proclaimed Mary, Queen.

Lady Jane and her boy husband were seized and hurried into the Tower of London. They were swiftly convicted of treason and sentenced to be beheaded.

Jane had been a queen nine days when she was led out to face the headsman. She had tried so hard to do what was expected of her. She was a heroine even in her unjust and merciless death. She walked calmly to the scaffold. Even after she was blindfolded Lady Jane was brave. She groped around blindly, pitifully asking where the block was that she might lay her head on it herself.

She was just seventeen when she was executed on the same block which was wet with the blood of the boy to whom she had been married—and all because she happened to have royal blood in her veins.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

"Everything About the Home Helps to Make the Home"

Solving the Problem of Correct Family Stationery.

SELECTING the right stationery is one of the intimate, personal problems which require the most careful consideration. Our good taste, breeding, character and refinement are often judged by our letter-paper.

Good taste in buying paper is a matter of cultivation. Those who are inclined to follow the extreme of fashion will find it both fickle and expensive. Each shop will show papers designed for the indiscriminate buyer, and before this paper can be used some other oddity may have taken its place.

Awkwardly-shaped envelopes of extreme size or unusual color, and vivid linings for envelopes are among the offences against good taste.

Pale gray, delicate tan and oyster white are standard colors in the best quality of paper. Straight edges and medium-sized, rectangular envelopes with pointed or square flaps are considered in irreproachable taste. The monogram may be in the centre of the sheet of paper or the name and address may be lettered across the top in old blue or black, using either flat or raised letters. Paper and correspondence cards should match, also the desk-pad and business envelope.

Paper of this sort is used year in and year out by particular women, and is a matter of simply ordering duplicates when the supply runs low. Sealing-wax is not used with monogrammed envelopes. With plain envelopes, sealing-wax is a matter of fancy, but if it is used it should match the color of the engraving on the paper. The seal should always be clear and deeply cut. If the paper is thin and the envelopes need lining, a gray-lined plaid is usually selected.

The man's paper has rectangular envelopes. The paper folds once to fit the envelopes, and the lettering or engraving should be in the left-hand, upper corner of the sheet, and on the middle of the envelope flap.

For family use a good quality of linen paper purchased by the pound will answer all purposes. Two styles of envelopes may be selected, square and rectangular. The paper will fit closely into the square and rather more loosely into the rectangular envelopes. For general family use, the address may be engraved in the upper left-hand corner of the sheets, then sealing wax of the same color may be used by different members of the family with their own special seals. The paper should be oyster white or cream, and the engraving black or dark blue. Correspondence cards, of course, should be purchased to match. Once accustomed to the use of good paper of this sort, children are not apt to make unwise selections when they are old enough to choose for themselves.

There are several styles of fancy paper for little folks which many mothers buy for their children's use. This is all right for notes to playmates and school friends, but the habit of using children's stationery should not be encouraged after nursery days.

There is a certain solemnity about letter-writing that should enter into the training of young people. They put themselves on record in black and white, and it should be done always with care and thought. Many a careless letter has proved a rock of disaster to its writer. The art of letter-writing is too little taught. The fact of the lack of this education is noticeable in letters of regret, acceptance, congratulation, sympathy, business, to public officials, travel and description, and could some of the writers know the comments made on their efforts they would go to school all over again to correct their blunders.

This is why we should watch our children and help them form correct habits if we wish them to be a credit to themselves in time to come, and to our training.

ODD and INTERESTING FACTS from EVERYWHERE

Silkworms were first reared by a Chinese Empress 4500 years ago, according to an old Chinese book, entitled "The Silkworm Classic."

Japan is one country in the world where the lamb chop on the breakfast table is practically unknown. As a result the raising of sheep has made no headway, and practically all woolen goods have to be imported. Japan can boast of only about 10,000 sheep. To encourage this product the government has proposed to offer a subsidy on wool and to import pedigreed stock.

In Sweden weddings formerly took place under cover of night. Behind the high altar of the ancient church at Hunsaby, in Gotland, a collection of long lances with sockets, for torches, may yet be seen. These were served out to the groomsmen on such occasions, both for defence and illumination. Those men were the best who could be found to volunteer their services. One wedding superstition is that a bride, on leaving her home for the wedding trip, must step into the carriage with the right foot first. She should do the same when she first enters the home prepared for her after the bridal trip.

The chrysanthemum, the national flower of Japan, if not actually the oldest, is undoubtedly one of the oldest of our introduced garden plants. Its early history is lost in the mists of antiquity, and its breakaway from the original type takes us so far back that no one seems to know exactly what the original plant was like. About the year A. D. 900 the first chrysanthemum show was held in the garden of the imperial residence at Tokio, and it is worthy of note that today "O-Kiku," to give the plant its vernacular name, is held in as great esteem by the people of Japan as it was then.

YOUR HEALTH

Why Haste Wastes Life and Hurry May Often Kill

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Commissioner of Health, New York City
U. S. Senator-Elect from New York State

DR. COPELAND

HURRY is the foundation of nervousness, it is damaging to the heart, it impairs digestion, it interferes with the proper functioning of all the vital organs—hurry is the bane of modern life.

A painter is said to have told his apprentice:

"You must hurry up and get the building finished before you run out of paint!"

Ponder that a moment!

We have just so much energy, just such capabilities. Are we really going to accomplish more during a lifetime by hurrying?

If life and our bodies were like the widow's cruse—unfailing in supply—there might be some sense in hurrying because we might beat the undertaker. But life and our bodies are not blessed with unlimited resources.

It is a homely and perhaps inelegant illustration, but I have heard poultry experts say: "There are just so many eggs in a hen. You may hasten the development and delivery of these eggs by stimulating feedings, by scientific lighting and by care of the crops, but in the long run you get no more eggs." There may be some doubt of the accuracy of the conclusion, but the statement serves to illuminate this point.

Before I go further I want to make clear that I am not seeking to justify sloth, laziness and idleness. While I consider hurry to be little short of a physical crime, yet it is expected of each of us that he shall serve his day and generation to the full extent of his talents. Therefore, diligence, industry and unceasing application are required of all. Unless these virtues are practiced, the last day will come with important work unfinished. Upon the trestle-board of life our particular work is laid out, and unless we finish the appointed tasks we have failed in our earthly mission.

But it is not expected that mere completion of our jobs is enough. It is expected that our assignments shall be well done, perfectly finished.

If we are to accomplish our callings we must have health, vigor and force. We cannot have these without conserving our strength and guarding our lives.

To attain and maintain the maximum of health there are certain simple rules which must be observed by all of us. One such rule is:

DON'T HURRY!

Hurry leads to carelessness of detail. Carelessness means taking missteps and suffering accident as a result.

Hurry produces overwrought nerves, congestion of the brain and over-stimulation of the heart.

Hurry wears out the body, hastens old age and shortens life.

A well-governed, temperate, hygienic life means vigor—not helplessness—in life means vigor—not helplessness—in old age. Think of the economic waste when one man hurries through his life's assignment, making himself a wreck, and then requiring for several years the care of his family, a nurse and another attendant or two.

An unnecessarily large proportion of the inmates of hospitals, homes and asylums are persons who hurried themselves into these places. Not only do they suffer, but they have lessened the common fund by making demands upon the surplus.

Do your work deliberately, calmly, systematically and thoroughly. Let no temptation cause you to hurry through tasks which deserve better treatment.

Haste makes waste.

Hurry is the bane of modern life.

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Describes a Smart, Apricot-Colored Cloth Coat Trimmed in Beaver.

PAM and I decided it was just the day for a brisk walk in the park.

"Let's put on our things and take the air," she suggested.

"I'm more than ready," I said.

"I love to see the people strolling by in the park, and the chubby children and their nurse-maids," Pam told me.

We were soon entering Central Park from the Fifth avenue side.

"The pond looks bare and cold," Pam said with a shudder.

"Yes," I agreed. "It's hard to believe people were out here in rowboats only a few months ago."

"Here comes a young girl who looks like a breath of spring," Pam remarked.

We were about to pass the young lady in question, and I took a quick scrutiny of her costume.

"One reason she looks so spring-like is because of her walk," Pam observed, analytically.

"And the other is because of her costume," I said.

"What shade is that coat?" Pam asked. "It's most attractive."

"It is, indeed," I agreed. "And it's what I'd call 'apricot color.'"

"Of course, that's what it is," Pam agreed. "I couldn't think for a minute."

"How stunning it is with the beaver fur at collar, cuffs and pockets," Pam observed in a low tone, as the young girl passed us.

"Did you notice those little three-cornered bits of material stitched below the fur of each pocket?" I asked.

"No," she answered. "Were they effective?"

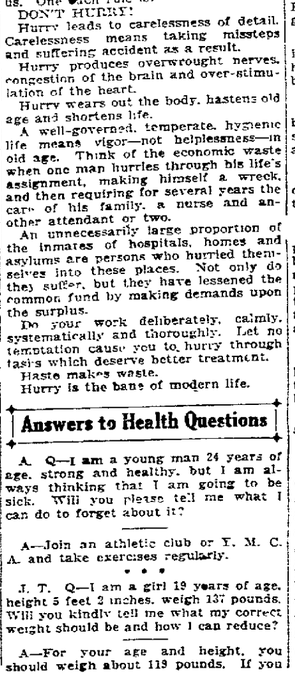

"Yes," I said. "They made a simple design which added to the attractiveness of the coat."

"I was very busy noticing the hat," Pam confessed.

"I don't remember it at all. What was it?" I asked.

"Beaver-colored velvet," she answered.

"What shape?" I asked.

Three-Cornered Bits of Stitched Cloth Trim This Attractive Coat.

"It was a scoopy shape," I told her. "The beaver velvet was shirred on it, and an apricot feather curled off either side."

"Sounds stunning," I admitted.

"The girl who gets a coat of an unusual color is clever," Pam observed.

"Yes, indeed," I agreed. "Seeing an attractive coat like this makes me feel that I'll always find an unusual one instead of getting something black or blue as usual."

"Only I must always have something black," Pam said. "I'd like to have a black coat for every day, and one of an unusual color for best."

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

FRIDAY, JAN. 19.

This day may be expected to revolve in the usual grooves, according to the astral prognostications. There is nothing of great importance in either the mutual or lunar aspects. Those in the employment of others may be under favorable conditions, and it may be found that the judgment is sound and clear, and should look far upon the way to fulfilled ambitions. This applies to those engaged in literary or professional pursuits, particularly as their ruling planet—Mercury—is in parallel with the planet of success and prosperity—Jupiter.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of success if they attend to affairs and take advantage of the excellent judgment and foresight bestowed upon them by the stars. Literary activities are especially favored. A child born on this day will be active, enterprising and ambitious, and will succeed through sound judgment and clear vision.

AURORA WANTS TO BUY ELECTRICITY

Grand Island or Hastings May Furnish Current From Their Plants —Committee Confers on the Matter.

AURORA, Neb., Jan. 18.—A working arrangement between Aurora and either Grand Island or Hastings for the furnishing of electrical current to Aurora may be worked out as a result of a visit to the two cities by Mayor T. M. Scott, Councilmen Glenn Analt, Charles Ronin, A. L. Highby and City Attorney Fraizer of Aurora.

If such a plan is carried out it will be necessary to have the present law dealing with cities of the first class amended so that they could construct transmission lines beyond their corporate limits and such a bill may be introduced in the legislature.

The Aurora visitors found the plant at Grand Island, according to G. W. Burdick, light commissioner, valued at $500,000 grown up from an original bond issue of $110,000 and all original issues excepting $35,000 have been retired. Mr. Burdick was of the opinion that the new generating plant to be ready June 1, would furnish current for Aurora and other towns.

The Hastings plant is worth $350,000 and all bonds have been retired and no tax levies have been made for the support of the electrical plant. The maximum rate at Hastings is 11 cents per kilowatt, with a 10 per cent reduction for cash. The maximum at Grand Island is also 11 cents with a 20 per cent discount for cash.

TRAINMEN ADMIT ROBBERY

Three Plead Guilty at Alliance in County Court and Are Fined $50 Each.

ALLIANCE, Neb., Jan. 17.—Burlington Freight Conductor H. C. Cleveland and Brakemen Roy Foley and Jack Sherlock, all of Alliance, entered pleas of guilty in county court to charges of petit larceny and were fined $50 each.

The men were arrested following the finding by Burlington Special Agent C. E. Amis and Sheriff George P. Jones of a quantity of stolen merchandise in their residences, it is said. The stolen goods, which were taken from a freight car in interstate shipment, consisted of several bolts and pieces of dress goods, several shirts, suits of underwear and a pair of shoes. Sherlock was first given a preliminary hearing on a charge of breaking and entering and the case was dismissed. He was immediately arrested on the lesser charge.

Conductor Cleveland has been in railroad service here about nine years, Sherlock about four years and Foley since last August.

H. S. MORSE STILL IN JAIL

Former President of American State Bank of Kearney Unable to Furnish $10,000 Bond.

KEARNEY, Neb., Jan. 18.—H. S. Morse, former president of the American State bank of this city, is still in jail here today, unable to furnish $10,000 bonds. He pleaded not guilty yesterday to charges filed against him by the state banking board of irregularities in connection with operating the bank while president. Morse is held on sixteen counts, including embezzlement. He was bound over to district court for trial during the May jury term.

MATHEWS TRIAL MONDAY

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 18.—Trial of Dr. John T. Mathews, charged with "murder by producing abortion," was set for next Monday by District Judge Leslie.

Three attorneys for Dr. Mathews sought to obtain a continuance for the trial. Their request was denied by Judge Leslie.

"Attorneys for Dr. Mathewson have had three weeks to complete their case," said County Attorney Henry Beal. "All they are doing is jockeying around."

Dr. Mathews was held responsible by a coroner's jury for the death of Loretta McDermott, pretty twenty four-year-old school teacher of Bassett, Neb.

BABY BREAKS WORLD RECORD

Cradle Roll Member Ten Seconds After Birth.

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 18.—Virginia Bridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. A. Bridge, 3521 Webster street, broke all world records in becoming a church member.

She was born 37 seconds after 1:31 a. m. yesterday in Stewart Maternity hospital. Just 10 seconds later she was a full fledged member of the cradle roll of the First Methodist Church.

Virginia's proud father was present, and after the second Virginia was born he pulled forth a cradle roll membership card, already filled out, and scratched the name, "William" off the card. That left only the name Virginia.

Other necessary data was filled in within 10 seconds by stop watch timer. Mrs. G. B. Golding, cradle roll superintendent, already had affixed her name to the membership card, as had Rev. J. W. G. Fast, pastor of the First Methodist church.

The former church joining record established by an infant was one minute, in St. Paul, about a month ago. Virginia is a healthy, lusty, eight-pound baby girl.

BEAT HER WITH A HAMMER

Frank Wilson Alleged to Have Made Brutal Attack.

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 18.—Marguerite Wilson, twenty-one, Boquet hotel, was severely beaten about her head with a hammer by her sweetheart, Frank Wilson, in her room at the hotel Tuesday night.

"He said he was going to leave me, and I didn't want him to go, so I said I would 'snitch' on him about some thefts if he left," she told police Tuesday night.

"He grabbed a hammer, and after knocking me down, beat me on the head," she said.

Her cries aroused roomers, who called police. Wilson escaped.

The girl, who said she has been working as a domestic, was taken to the city jail hospital. When questioned by police, she said her head ached so severely that she couldn't talk.

"I'll do my talking tomorrow," she said.

She told police, however, that she came to Omaha three weeks ago from Minneapolis with Wilson, whose name is similar to her own, but they are not related.

PLAYS MORAL CONDITIONS

Bishop Shayler Declares Use of Intoxicating Liquors Not Confined to One Class.

OMAHA, Jan. 18.—"Moral conditions are appalling in the Nebraska diocese as well as over the entire country," Bishop E. V. Shayler declared at the Episcopal diocesan council which opened here today.

Bishop Shayler particularly depreciated the lowering of moral standards and the use of intoxicating liquors, declaring it is not confined to one class, but that it is being countenanced by many religious persons, some of whom participate in liquor drinking and seem indifferent to its use.

He called attention to the fact that in 1922 the Salvation Army rescue home alone had cared for 225 unmarried mothers in Omaha, to illustrate his point that moral conditions are not at the high standard demanded of Christians.

EXPERT GIVES HIS CANDID OPINION

Drug Clerk, Speaking from Own Experience, Says Tanlac Has No Superior—Troubles Gone.

"Not in years have I enjoyed such good health as I do since taking Tanlac, and I am glad to give a straight-from-the-shoulder recommendation for this medicine," declared Marvin Cohen, 1438 N. Rockwell St., Chicago, a young drug clerk.

"I suffered terribly from stomach trouble and got into a badly run-down condition. Gas formed on my stomach, attacks of indigestion kept me in misery, and headaches and pains in my back helped to pull me down. Basketball was my favorite pastime, but I got so weak and short of breath I had to give it up.

"But Tanlac has put my health on a firm foundation and there is no guess work about it. I never have indigestion any more, can play a fast game of basketball, and just feel in fine shape. I have handled many medicines over the counter, but there's none better than Tanlac at any price."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Over 35 million bottles sold.—Advertisement.

Makes a Family Supply of Cough Remedy

Really better than ready-made cough syrups, and saves about $2. Easily and quickly prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

LEGION COMMANDER SOUNDS A WARNING

Thinks Country in Its Disregard for Law Is Running Close to the Line and Is in Danger.

NORFOLK, Neb., Jan. 18.—America is running too close to the line and if we are going to let liberty become license the Huns and vandals from within will overrun the nation or a dictator will arise, and God pity the country. The disregard of the Eighteenth amendment, the utter disregard for the law, is one outstanding sign that the nation is running close to the line.

This was a warning sounded by J. Ed. C. Fisher of Beatrice, state commander of the Nebraska American Legion, at a Third district meeting held in the local American Legion post hall attended by about three hundred ex-service men and many Norfolk business men. Seventeen posts over this district were represented at the meeting and the banquet.

DAM WILL SOON BE READY

Power Company on Blue River Soon to Furnish Current for Towns Near Beatrice.

WYMORE, Neb., Jan. 18.—The new hydro-electric dam of the Beatrice Power company, on the Blue river, eight miles south of here, is about ready for cutting into service. It will furnish current for over thirty new towns in Gage, Jefferson, Thayer, Saline and Fillmore counties, which have heretofore either had no electric current, or have had to depend on small and uncertain privately owned and operated plants on a restricted hourly basis.

The dam will also strengthen the power at Wymore, Holmesville, Barneston and Beatrice. The transmission line is of three heavy copper wires, and cost over $50,000. The dam is solid concrete, bedded deep in the river and contains heavy steel flood gates, operated electrically, and cost over $375,000.

It has been in course of construction over four years, was the cause of one death and ten serious injuries, and is one of the largest and most perfect plants of its kind in the country, and is expected to furnish and control 4,500,000 kilowatts of electric current annually.

A force of an average of forty-five men a day, and ten a night, have been at work for the entire four year period, the day force sometimes being increased to one hundred. Over seven hundred car loads of cement from Superior, Neb., and Blue Rapids, Kas., were used in its construction. The same company will move to Fullerton from here to construct a large dam on Cedar river.

Cost "Plenty Penny" to Get Jack in Ring Again; Drake Opens Home Season

SECRET PRACTICE FOR DRAKE SQUAD

The Bulldog basketball squad of nine men with their coach, O. M. Solem, held a secret practice and light workout on the rectangle of the university armory, Wednesday evening, to loosen up and relieve the muscle stiffness incurred from Tuesday night's contest with the Kansas Aggies. Coach "Ossie" Solem says that his men have come thru the early week contest without an injury and that by the time the whistle blows for the start of the Nebraska-Drake game Thursday night, his men will be in the pink of physical condition.

The Bulldogs defeated the Kansas Aggies team Tuesday night by a register of 38 to 12. The other two conference games they have played, one with Missouri and the other with Kansas, have resulted in defeats for the Des Moines aggregation. Coach Solem, commented on the possibilities of the Nebraska-Drake contest by saying, "It all depends on how the teams are going."

The Bulldog coach added that he did not have any basis for a good comparison between the teams but judging from the results of the Drake and Nebraska games with Kansas and the Kansas Aggies, he thought the teams about evenly matched. Drake won two games from the Nebraska quintet during the 1922 season. Three of Drake's last year letter men, Wilhelm, Boelter, and Devine, are members of this year's squad. "But these facts do not mean anything," concluded Coach "Ossie" Solem, " it all depends on how 'hot' the teams are."

More Games May Be Played in 1923

Directors and owners of state league clubs have been talking up among themselves the idea of playing 130 games instead of 120 as was done last year. And the idea seems to be meeting with aproval. It will come before the annual meeting of the directors which will be called as soon as President Miles returns from a trip to the gulf. If the new plan is adopted, the league will open earlier.

YORK, Neb., Jan. 17.—Hastings college tonight defeated York college on the local floor by a tally of 20 to 5. This is the first game on Yorks' '23 schedule.

Players Should Think for Themselves—Tip for "Freezing" the Ball—How It Decided an Important Game.

NO. 4—OFFENSIVE FORMATIONS.

Each player ought to do his individual thinking. He ought not to depend on others to lead the attack. If there is a chance at any time of his receiving a pass, he ought to ask himself such questions as "What am I going to do with it when I get it?" If he does so he will fool himself one jump ahead of his opponents. Men should concentrate on their game just as checker players plan and figure their moves. Hence, after a pass they should ask themselves, "What next?"

After making a pass to a teammate, one should immediately glance to the sides of the court to find an opening which to rush.

A man dribbling down the floor should not overlook another man who may be in front, cutting in from the side. It is every man's business to look for such opportunities to feed a teammate.

Always Follow a Shot.

A good offensive man will always follow up a shot whether it is taken up by himself or any other member of the team. There are any number of guards who wait for the ball to come to them after it strikes the basket, and the man following up the ball will come in on a run, leap in the air, meet the ball and shoot it into the basket. In the mean time, the guard stands in amazement, realizing his mistake in not leaping for the ball.

The most dangerous man under the basket that I know of is "Dutch" Denhert, who played with the Scranton basketball team, champions of the Penn State league, and plays guard with the Original Celtics. "Dutch" is now tall and rangy, and has a wonderful physique. Altho his position is that of guard, he always follows a shot taken by one of his mates. He comes in on a run, leaps high, and if he is in a position to shoot, does so; if not, he throws the ball back to one of his mates and starts the play over again. He realizes the value of having possession of the ball.

Another outstanding feature about this player is that he knows just when to follow up the ball. He uses stategy. For instance, if one of his mates takes a shot somewhere in and around the foul line, he follows up by going around his opponent to the side instead of charging into him and takinfi chances of getting bruised.

Confuses Opponent.

He does this in such a manner that his opponent does not know whether he is drawing off to the side or just manoeuvring about for an opening to cut for the basket. If a shot is taken on the right side of the court and a player is over on the left side, that is the time for him to go in and follow.

It is better than for a man to go in from the same side as the one from which the shot is taken.

The final thought on playing the offense is freezing the ball, to keep the ball from your opponents by passing it about you with the intention of "killing time." This past season, when City college played Princeton university the former team was leading by three points, with but two minutes to go. There was a time out. The boys decided to freeze the ball. When they resumed play they passed the ball very carefully among themselves, every man on the team moving and cutting from side to side, and before they knew it the whistle blew and the game was over, with the ball in City college's possession.

Fumble Is Expensive.

Just as soon as one of the men gets possession of the ball let him throw it back to one of the guards. Then have every man on the team move from side to side. It should be remembered that when a pass is made the player receiving it must not fail to run toward the ball, for the pass may be intercepted. Long passes must not be used. If a player calls for a long pass his mates should ignore him until he comes forward to receive it. If his man is playing him closely the ball ought not to be passed to him. A player should use his discretion, because a single slip, a fumble, or a poor pass may cost his men the game. There are defensive teams that will not "close in" when their opponents commence to freeze the ball, but will wait for them to advance down the floor. On the other hand, a team which knows its business will close in immediately because there is so short a time to play.

When a player's opponent begins to close in on him, let him make a sudden sprint in the direction of the basket to lead his man to believe he is going in for a shot, then stop suddenly, turn, and go back to meet the ball. He will find that his man will not always follow him back as quickly as he pursued him in the sprint toward the basket.

Take The Chance.

As soon as he receives the ball, let some other member of his team follow this operation. If at any time a man cuts for the basket and eludes his opponent so completely that a chance can be taken on feeding him with a high loop pass, that opportunity to increase the score may be taken. In "freezing" the ball, some men like to hold the ball because their opponents do not close in on the play. I am not in favor of this because that player's mates are being covered all that time and some opponents, passing by, may slap the ball from his hands or rush him for a held-ball.

I recollect playing in an important match several years ago between Bridgeport and Danbury. "Chief" Muller, playing guard with the Danbury team, opposed Sedran of the Bridgeport team. Muller was much taller than Sedran and it so happened that the Danbury team was leading by one point with but two minutes to go. Muller got possession of the ball and held it at arm's lenght with his trunk stopped forward. Sedran could not do a thing with Muller on account of the latter's height, and the game ended with Danbury leading.

Chance of a Foul.

The only way to break up a play of that kind is to have another mate rush in from the front and try to take possession of the ball, while the short man in the rear backs up just as soon as his mate comes in on the play. If the man in the rear does not back up, a foul may be called on account of two men being on the ball at the same time.

The chapter on defensive basketball will enlighten you on how to break up "freezing" the ball.

ARTICLE 14.

The Invisible Ball—Folly of Baiting the Umpire—Joe Kelly and the Hundred Dollar Watch.

In the old days at Washington when the games almost invariably ran into darkness on account of starting at four o'clock we had many amusing climaxes.

Recently I have heard an anecodote of a game in one of these so-called Twilight leagues. As a matter of fact it was told of a Washington game several years ago.

A game had gone into early twilight and it was getting so dark that it was really almost impossible to see the ball. The shadow of the grandstand was on the diamond and there was danger of some player getting hurt. The umpire, tho, was obstinate in refusing to call the game. I think there must have been a league understanding that all games at Washington must be finished even if it actually got dark enough for the street lamps to be lighted.

Goes Thru Motions.

On this day the pitcher in desperation called the catcher into conference.

"Say," he said, "you take the ball and hold it in your glove. I will simply wind up and go thru the motions. It's a cinch that umps can't see whether there is a ball or not. After I make the motion you give the mitt a slap and show the ball. There's a chance he'll call a strike on this fellow and we'll win."

It was so arranged. There were two strikes on the batter at the time. He squared himself for a swing. The pitcher wound up and went thru the motion of throwing to the plate. The catcher popped the mitt.

"Three strikes, you're out," called the umpire, tho no ball had been pitched at all.

"Strike?" screamed the batter. "Where do you get that stuff? You're as blind as a bat. Anybody could see that ball was two feet outside!"

Baiting the Umpire.

Our Baltimore club had a reputation as umpire fighters. I guess we did make life pretty miserable for some of them. This was due largely to the never-die spirit that we had built. It was our second nature to fight for the smallest point and, as a consequence, the umpire often had to take the brunt of our wrath.

Fans often have said to me: "Why do ballplayers argue so long with an umpire over a decision? They know very well, that he is not going to change it."

Of course, we know that he is not going to change it but the ballplayer motive is arguing so insistently, aside from his natural disgrunted feelings, is to express upon the umpire that the players are not going to let anything slip by them. If he has made a mistake or if the decision is very close the chances are he will be more careful on the next one if he knows that he will be in for a ride.

I am not a believer in disputing with umpires until some player gets put out of the game. It may be news to some fans to know that at times I have announced to my players that I would fine any one $25 who got put out of a game for disputing with the umpire. There is nothing to be gained by losing a good player. To get put out is merely to weaken the club. Many games have been lost by players kicking themselves out. There is a certain point at which they must stop. With a manager—a non-playing manager—it is different. If he gets put out the team can go right ahead with all its strength.

Players High Strung.

Still, it's pretty difficult to change human nature by simple words of advice and statements of fact. If a ball player is high strung—and all good players generally are—he cannot entirely control himself when he thinks the umpire has given him the worst of it. The keen disappointment over failure to go thru with a play, due to the decision, naturally arouses his temper. As between the two I would rather have a ball player who fought for every point, even if wrong, than one who meekly submitted to everything without a word.

Back in the nineties we had a famous umpire known as "Watch" Burnham. He acquired this nickname thru a run-in with Joe Kelley in a game at Baltimore. Joe will not forget that incident to his dying day.

The fans of Baltimore had presented Joe with a very valuable watch. Arriving at the club house one day he turned the watch over to the attendant to keep for him. After the players had gone out on the field Umpire Burnhame came in to dress. The club house man had to leave and he asked Mr. Burnham if he would keep Kelley's watch until after the game, which he did.

In the third or fourth inning of the game Kelly was called out at second on a close play. It broke up our rally. Immediately there was a rush of players to argue with the umpire. We wrangled and wrangled for several minutes. Eventually Burnham got us all off but Kelley. Joe was beside himself in his disappointment. He fumed and fretted following Burnham all over the diamond.

"Get out of here," Burnham finally ordered. "Or I'll put you out of the game."

"Put who out?" asked Kelley, following him up.

"You—I'll put you out of the park."

But Joe couldn't be quieted. He continued to nag after Burnham. Finally the umpire pulled his watch.

"You've got just one minute to get back and play ball," he told Kelley, "or I'll forfeit the game."

"I have, have I?" snapped Joe. With that he reached over and slapped the watch out of Burnham's hand and kicked it across the infield.

"Now you will get out!" ordered Burnham. "That will cost you $25 and that watch will cost you a hundred."

"What d'you mean a hundred?" said Kelley. "That Waterbury ain't worth $3."

"Maybe not," said Burnham, "but it's yours."

Ruefully it dawned on Kelley that he had kicked his prize watch, his present from the fans, in the dust. He picked it up and went right out of the park, and to a jeweler.

Ever after that incident Burnham was known as "Watch" Burnham.

This baiting of umpires is not nearly so popular nowadays as it was thirty years ago. One reason for that is that it is not so popular with the public. The fans get tired of continual wrangling. Naturally they prefer to see a ball game, that being what they came for. Players often do not realize this. They think only of the game they are trying to win.

Umpire baiting and so-called rowdyism go together. Both are gradually disappearing from the game. The players themselves have helped to bring this about. There is no question that the average of intelligence is higher now than it was thirty years ago. Mental training and mental discipline do more than anything to make a man hold his temper. With that also comes dignity. Any intelligent and well trained man realizes that he is merely hurting himself to keep up rowdyism. It never gets him anywhere. It will be noted that much of the old baiting and rowdyism disappeared with the advent of the college men in numbers. At school they are trained to respect the authority of umpires, referees, and field judges. In baseball the training sticks with them. It is rare that you see a college player in a long, senseless dispute with an umpire.

MIDLAND DOWNS COTNER 43 TO 26

FREMONT, Neb., Jan. 17.—Midland basketball stock went up this evening when the Midland quintet swamped Cotner 43 to 26. Midland took the lead at the start and was in danger at no time during the game. Horn and Lundberg lead in scoring for Midland while Etzelmiller made most of the points for the Cotner five. MUST PAY $500,000 TO SEE DEMPSEY GO

Champion Would Not Think of Lacing on Glove in Bout of Any Kind for Less Than Half Million—Talk Terms Soon.

By Henry L. Farrell.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Jack Dempsey will not consider drawing on a glove for any kind of real contest for less than $500,000. When he starts talking terms with Tex Rickard he probably may ask more.

Dempsey and Kearns are to be here next week to discuss the subject with Rickard and they have already made up their minds on what they are going to demand.

May Demand More.

If Rickard is able to arrange a big contest in New York where a top price of $25 can be charged, Dempsey will ask for about $650,000. If the fight is staged in New Jersey, where the law limits admission prices to $15, the heavyweight champion will be content with $500,000.

Before terms are discussed, Dempsey will ask the promoter to deposit about $50,000 to prove that he is not merely looking for publicity.

When the articles are signed, the champion must get one-third of his purse and the remaining two-thirds must be handed over before he steps into the ring.

Would Take Sixty Per Cent.

The New York boxing commission ruled some time ago that no guarantees would be allowed in the state and that all boxers would have to work on a percentage basis. If the commission insists upon prying into the actual arrangements for the next defense of his title. Dempsey will agree to work for 60 per cent of the gross receipts, it was learned.

Dempsey, it is also understood, is not enthusiastic over the idea of a decision fight if one of several contenders is named as his opponent. He would rather work in New Jersey or have the no-decision prevail in New York but that, of course, is impossible under the law.

Recall Carpentier Fight.

Altho it established a record, Jack Kearns has always maintained that he and Dempsey got none the better of the bargain when Tex Rickard gave them $300,000 for fighting Carpentier.

"There wasn't anything near $300,000 when we finished paying off," Kearns has always said.

Budgeting Home Expenditures

A great many families have a tolerably steady monthly income, either from fees for professional services, profits from business, rents from property owned, interest on investments, or wages and salaries. Where it is possible to make a fairly accurate estimate of the monthly income, it is an excellent thing to make a budget for home expenditures.

Naturally, if the family is to be thrifty and prosper, the outgo or expenses must be less than the income; but the term "expenditures" is broader and covers savings as well as expenses. In a properly prepared budget the expenditures will consume all the income every month; but the expenses will always be less than the income.

A family budget designed for a family of four—father, mother, and two children—where the monthly income is $200 per month or about $46 per week, gives the various items about as follows:

House	$10.30
Running Expenses	4.15
Food	12.75
Savings	3.60
Insurance (Life)	1.70
Clothes	8.00
Betterment	3.00
Recreation	2.00
Total	$46.00

Where advantage is taken of our Prudential Monthly Payment plan of paying for a home, the items "house" and "savings" are readjusted, so that the amount paid on principal is included as "savings."

The remainder of the "savings" item not used in paying on the home, can be utilized in taking care of one of our Modern Investment contracts.

And the Life Insurance item is best handled through our Eltelic contract, which pays 5% on daily balances and cares for annual premiums in monthly payments.

Ask for booklets and circulars describing the plans mentioned. They will aid you in establishing and maintaining your family or home budget.

The story that Lincoln has been selected by an eastern synidicate as the location for a new $250,000 motion picture theater is not verified here. The information was given out in Omaha by John R. Webster of Albany, N. Y., who further said that the location of the theater had already been chosen in the heart of the business section of Lincoln and that construction was to start in the near future. Local theater managers have heard nothing of the proposed theater, and for this reason think there may be some mistake in the report, which also mentioned a $100,000 theater for Kearney.

MORE OFFICERS NEEDED

New Vehicle Traffic Ordinance Will Make More Work for the Lincoln Cops.

The new traffic ordinance will require more policemen and at least another motorcycle cop. Mayor Zehrung said Thursday that one or perhaps two officers will be added to the force as soon as possible and next summer an additional motorcycle man. There are now two such officers.

A resolution will likely be passed at the council meeting Monday afternoon fixing the two hour parking limit district and the five minute stopping places. Under the supervision of City Engineer Bates cement blocks are now being made to be used for marking the safety zones. They will be used at the most congested zones. Where there are safety zones vehicles will not have to stop for the street cars to load and unload passengers, but at the present time this regulation is not into effect. Those vehicle drivers who are in a hurry are advised to take one of the less congested highways.

The additional policemen will be kept busy in the congested section. The two hour parking limit is expected to require much attention until the vehicle drivers more clearly understand this new traffic provision in the business district.

Mayor Zehrung said in discussing the new ordinance that while the great majority of automobile drivers are fully mindful of the rights of pedestrians and the traffic rules and regulations some defy them and disregard laws.

"Considering the large number of automobiles there are fewer accidents in Lincoln than in any other city of its size in the United States" said Mayor Zehrung. "A few drivers make the automobile unpopular to people who do not own one. There is no question in the minds of the members of the city council of the haerty cooperation of most drivers in obeying the traffic ordinance and in preventing accidents."

WOMAN ASKS A LARGE SUM

WANTS $25,000 FOR LOSS OF HUSBAND'S LOVE.

Catherine L. Robinson Alleges Her Mate's Affection Was Stolen Away Last Summer by Martha E. Eisenberger.

Catherine L. Robinson filed suit in district court Thursday morning against Martha E. Eisenberger, who, it is alleged in the petition, enticed the love of Ross R. Robinson from his wife and the mother of his three children, asking $25,000 damages for the alleged alienation of affection.

It is charged in the petition that during the summer of 1922 the defendant induced the plaintiff's husband to tell her that he no longer cared for her, that he loved the defendant, and would remain with her. The petition stated that Mr. and Mrs. Robinson were married in Lincoln January 2, 1915, and thre three children, the youngest of whom is fifteen months old.

It is alleged that the defendant has been traveling about the country with the plaintiff's husband, altho, it is charged, she knows he is a man of family.

REPUBLICANS WILL CAUCUS

HOUSE MEMBERS MEET THURSDAY NIGHT AT GRAND.

Suspected That the Code and the Budget Will Be Discussed Behind the Closed Doors Provided For.

Following the example of the democratic members of the house the republicans of that body have been called in caucus at the Grand hotel at 7:30 Thursday night.

The leaders say that the call was issued before they heard the budget, and says, as did the democrats, that the purpose is to get better acquainted.

The real purpose, however, is understood to be to sound out the republicans on the code and the budget. The members have not had time to digest the meaning of the mass of figures handed to them, and they desire some enlightenment on it.

The republicans decline to accept the governor's claim that he is putting up to them an opportunity to save six million dollars. They cannot see how the recommendations made will produce so desirable a result. The presence of cash funds in an appropriation total is confusing to most persons. The republicans will seek enlightenment on these figures.

The fact that the governor abolishes so few code activities and transfers so many to other departments also confuses the situation. The members want to know how this will affect tax results. Hence the caucus.

BRYAN MAKES PLAN PUBLIC

UNSCRAMBLING OF CODE ANNOUNCED BY GOVERNOR.

Wipes Out All of the Secretaries and Parcels Out What Activities Are Not Abandoned Among Other Departments.

Governor Bryan let the legislators into the secret of his cure for code evils Thursday afternoon when he deiivered his budget. He says the big mistake was made in trying to fit to little Nebraska a system devised for big Illinois, and this made it necessary to find a sufficient number of departments and activities to justify the existence and the salaries of the secretaries. In trying to make the thing fit duplications multiplied, the number of employes greatly increased, educational departments were established in administrative departments and "duplications of effort and expense have become manifest everywhere."

The governor said, "An effort was made to create numerous new executive officers or middlemen in the form of code secretaries and to set them up between the people's representatives—the constitutional officers—and the state's administrative, executive and educational departments.

"The estimates for appropriations for the state's executive, administrative and educational departments have been placed in the hands of these middlemen, and we are presented with a so-called budget, which is a maze of figures, technical terms, a complicated system of bookkeeping that is almost impossible to fathom or to trace how the various funds are created, how the state's money is spent by the various spending agencies, or where the authority comes from to create new activities, or how a check on the money can be made that may be expended by the various middlemen or code secretaries."

Offices and Departments Abolished.

All six of the code secretaries and all six of the code departments.

State hall insurance commissioner; substitutes clerk in auditor's office to do work.

State bureau of securities.

Investigation department of fire prevention division.

Division of accounts in department of finance, auditor agreeing to take it without requiring any additional help other than originally provided for auditor's office.

All inspectors, to be regrouped under one department of inspection that will reduce number of inspections, provide for inspections at source of supply and by local governmental units.

Bureau of markets on ground duplication of work done by agricultural department and federal government and of no value to farmers.

Agricultural statistics and publicity, which he says is tripiicated by state college and live stock marketmen.

Radio department, on same ground. Says interests only children of well-to-do parents in cities and reaches few farmers.

No appropriation for eradication of bovine tuberculosis on ground present method makes no provision to prevent spread, and that if certification law be strengthened state will be cleaned up in two and a half years.

Changes, Transfers and Consolidations.

Department of finance—Budget department to tax commissioner, who is named by governor, who is said to have time to do this and get rid of a deputy, too; department of purchase and supplies to land commissioner, who says he can handle it with but little added expense, and who also gets handling of printing official reports and blue book.

Deparment of public welfare—Said by governor to be largely duplication of other departments—bureau of health, with divisions of contagious and communicable diseases, vital statistics, sanitation, medical examiners and examining boads, to be recreated as old board of health, with secretaries in charge to be named by governor, all expenses to be met by fees for laboratory services, now given free; division of child hygiene, and child welfare bureau, declared to be duplication of work of university extension, to go to state school superintendent, who can handle without additional expense; bureau of social service and division of charities of corrections, said to be duplications of university extensions, to go to university extension, which is also to handle the Sheppard-Towner maternity bureau; division athletics transferred to fish and game bureau.

Department of labor—To be put back as before, with governor in charge, who shall name a deputy at $3,500 a year.

Department of finance—Banking and insurance made separate departments as of old, with governor naming bank commissioner at $4,000 and insurance commissioner at $3,500, executive council to determine policies; division of fire prevention transferred to state superintendent, where work is duplicated; inspection of fire prevention transferred to department of inspection.

Department of agriculture — Inspections in food, drugs, oil, dairy, weights and measures, standardization and inspection, laboratory and fire prevention to be handed over to newly-created division of inspections; seed analyst transferred to agricultural college with no expense; department of game, fish and athletics created, with head to be named by governor at $3,000 a year; animal industry transferred to board of agriculture, with governor to name state veterinarian; inspection of dairy herds transferred to agricultural college.

Department of public works—Dissolved, and recstablished under a state engineer named by the governor as before; secretary of state to handle license plate division; executive council to pass on all road plans; cut automobile license tax 50 per cent.

LEGISLATION AND MUSIC

Lions Hear Two Senators and a Singer at Weekly Luncheon Thursday Noon.

The place of young men in business; law making and public affairs, and the things legislators bump up against in the way of freak bills, were the topics briefly discussed before the Lions club Thursday by Senator W. B. Banning of Cass and Senator Phil Tomek of Butler, who were guests of the club. These combined with the regular stunt competition of the reds and the blues to make a hilarious session, and the spirit of the occasion was not notably altered by the group of songs given by Roy Wall, tho the Lions stopped roaring in order not to miss a note. Mr. Wall sang "She is Far From the Land," arranged by Lambert; a manuscript song by Thurlow Lieurance, "Ghost Pipes," and two negro spirituals arranged by David Guion, "I Don't Feel Noways Tired," and "The Old Ark's a-Moverin' and I'se Gwine Home." Norman Goodbrodt played Mr. Wall's accompaniments.

CONGRESS SLOW IN GETTING TO WORK

Representative Baldridge Urges That Members Take Seats Not Later Than April First After Election.

Because it was necessary 145 years ago to give congressmen plenty of time to reach Washington by horse or mule, is no reason to suspect that it is necessary to continue the precedure according to Representative Baldridge of Omaha who introduced a hurry-up resolution in the house Tuhrsday which received unanimous approval.

He proposes that instead of waiting thirteen months after election to take their seats, congressmen elect shall be seated one month after taking oath. He urges such change as may be necessary to seat them on April 1 following their election in November. In the old days, he said, it required from three to four months in some instances to notify members elect that they were congressmen. Then it required several weeks for the members to ride to Washington to find their seats.

Two house democrats, Representatives Beushausen and Broome, blocked progress of a resolution introduced by Representative Barbour, republican, recommending that the President of the United States appoint Frank Mondell of Wyoming secretary of the interior. Because of the temporary blockades, the resolution went over one day.

BRYAN WIELDS KNIFE UPON APPROPRIATIONS

count of the non-resident students coming to the state that I believe that a fee should be charged to such students of at least $50 per year. It seems that almost all universities in the United States other than the Nebraska university charge an additional fee for non-resident students. This additional fee would bring an additional revenue to the university of about $40,000 a year. Owing to the increased attendance, the cash receipts for the university are alos increased, and taking this into consideration and after consulting with persons who are conversant with the university's activities and needs, I have made a recommendation that a reduction of $300,000 in the maintenance fund, as will be shown in the attached supplementary budget. This does not represent, however, a reduction of that amount owing to the increased receipts of the university from other sources.

"A number of representative farmers, and some representing farm organizations, have requested me to make recommendations for the elimination of some of the activities in the university, especially the agricultural college extension work, but the time that I have had to prepare recommendations covering the activities under the state government and paid for by the taxpayers has not been sufficient for me to go into the matters referred to."

No Salaries Cut Recommended.

The governor said that in the haste made necessary by the short time allowed a number of errors have doubtless crept in. He said in closing:

"In investigating the various departments and the state's activities for the purpose of recommending appropriations needed for same, it has been my aim to cut unnecessary middlemen, fix the responsibility and the work on the executive officers elected by the people and thus fix their responsibility so that it is necessary for them to give personal attention and devote their personal time to administrative and executive work of their respective departments.

"The saving in the expense as the suggested appropriations indicate is brought about by not reducing executive salaries and the salaries of constitutional officers of the state, but to retain, at salaries fixed by the constitution as reasonable amounts needed by the various officers in their respective positions and then increase their duties by cutting out unnecessary assistance and reducing or abolishing divisions and sub-division chiefs and requiring the work to be done by the constitutional officers. The plan will also prevent employes, in the future, from recommending budgets to the legislature and will confine that work to the constitutional officers who are elected by and responsible to the people. The budget and these recommendations are prepared without thought of partisan advantage or political effect."

"Was" and "Now" PIANO
Was $550
Now $132

Read and Reflect

How many times have you seen this catch line in special sale piano advertising?

Did you ever know of anyone getting a Real Bargain at one of these "Now" and "Was" sales?

Did you ever see or hear of a person who paid the "Was" price?

Why should the piano business be conducted any different from any other legitimate business?

It's because the average purchaser is not thoroughly versed as to piano quality, and often judges the quality of the piano by the price the dealer asks for it.

A one-priced house or dealer reduces his price to the minimum and if he is sincere he is bound to make a success from the fact that he has treated all alike.

Our business has grown to its present high standard by suggesting "Pianos of Quality and Reputation" at the lowest possible price at which they may be sold. We invite your inspection.

WANT BARS TAKEN DOWN

IMMIGRATION FIGHT HEAVILY FINANCED BY BIG EMPLOYERS.

Others Who Profit by Immigration, Church Groups, Internationalists and Humanitarians Join in Fight.

CHAPTER II.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18. — With every resource of publicity at their command, backed heavily as to finances, and endowed with not a little political influence, proponents of less immigration restriction are today the most aggressive and determined in the fight to dominate the writing of the nation's immigration policy which congress is about to undertake.

These advocates of a freer flow of immigration into the United States fall roughly into three classes:

1—Employers of labor of all kinds

2—Groups and individuals who profit by immigration as an institution.

3—Church groups, internationalists, humanitarians and philosophers.

By far the most powerful and important of these are the employers of labor, a group which is made up of employers of cheap unskilled labor and employers of classified agricultural labor. Of these two, the employers of common labor, the manufacturing-industrial class, are the most concerned in the drive to force down our present bars to a flood of foreigners and are the nominal leaders of the fight.

Want Cheap Labor.

Immigration, this class says, is necessary to afford a ready source of cheap, unskilled labor to industry. It serves as a reservoir into which industry may constantly dip for a supply of men to do the rough work of the country's industry at minimum wages.

Minimum wages, they continue, mean cheaply produced products and a lower cost of living to the nation as a whole.

They claim that "prosperity" is at this very moment being retarded by labor shortages in the country's principal industrial centers.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon is one of the subscribers to this contention. In his recent annual report the secretary said: "Owing to the restrictions on immigration and the general resumption of industry, the country is already suffering from a scarcity of labor which is embarrassing some lines of business and leading to higher wage scales, where lower were expected a year ago."

Borne Out By Figures.

These claims of labor shortages are borne out by figures of the department of labor which show a continual decline in the common labor available in the past year and a half.

The immigrant aid societies immigrant banks and labor bureaus—in fact, the whole business structure which the great immigrant movements of pre-war days called into existence—are staunch advocates of total relaxation of immigration bans.

Certain churches, with interests in particular corners of the world, advocate the "freedom of America" to the peoples whom they have taken under their wings. The Armenian nation is a case in point. It has been made the protege of a number of American churches.

RADIO IN THE HOME

BY HENRY M. NEELY

Looking for Trouble in Your Set.

Many a man has invested a tidy sum of money in a radio set and has heard it work beautifully in the store where he has bought it and then has failed to get any satisfaction out of it when he took it home. He will hear faint signals perhaps, but will not get anything like the strength of signals that he had every reason to expect.

In almost every case he blames the set or the salesman or he goes frantically over all of his wiring to find out where the trouble is, when, as a matter of fact, the whole fault lay either in his aerial or his ground connection. If you hear signals at all in your set you may be fairly sure that the various pieces of apparatus are correctly connected.

The trouble then narrows itself down to certain possible faults. It sometimes may be corrected by shifting the connection that goes from the minus side of your B battery. If it is connected to the plus of your filament battery try it on the minus or if it is on the minus try it on the plus.

It may be that the storage battery is not delivering sufficient voltage to the filament of your bulbs. If you have to turn your rheostats all the way on to the extreme position this is probably the case. If you are working with a storage battery you should test the solution with your hydrometer, and if it is below 1200 your battery needs a boost. If you are using a dry cell and a peanut tube get a new dry cell.

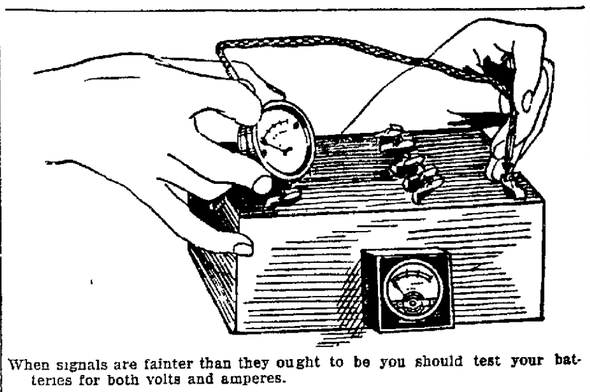

It may be that your B battery has run down and will not deliver sufficient voltage to the plate. Every radio fan should have a little volt meter that reads up to fifty volts and should test his B battery whenever his signals are getting weak. Usually the B battery will give warning when it is beginning to die down. This warning takes the form of a loud crackling in the phones constantly. Users of the peanut tube should also have one of those little ammeters which sell for about $1 and which read up to 30 amperes. The dry cell that lights the filament should be tested with this constantly.

With this test you should place one connection of your ammeter on a connection of the dry cell and then just touch the ammeter wire lightly to the other connection. Do not put it there and hold it there long. With a new dry cell the needle should shoot all the way over to 30. If the dry cell is about worn out the needle will not go above 15. Any reading below 20 means that you need a new dry cell.

The B battery for the detector bulb should test at least 18 volts and ought to test 22.

In other words the amperage on a B battery can fall quite low as long as the voltage keeps up close to its max imum.

(Copyright, 1923, by Public Ledger Co.)

When signals are fainter than they ought to be you should test your batteries for both volts and amperes.

Have YOU a Youthful Walk?

Cantilever Shoes Make It Possible

Could you do Walter Camp's famous "daily dozen" with your feet strapped to boards?

Ordinary shoes are like boards on your feet. Your arch cannot flex in them because they are reinforced with steel between the leathers of the sole. Ask your shoemaker to show you when he is resoling a pair of shoes. See how impossible it is to bend them at the arch.

A Cantilever Spring

Dr. Douglas Stewart, a leading specialist, says: "The foot is a cantilever spring so made that when it is allowed to function normally it carries the body with the greatest possible ease and resilience."

The Cantilever Shoe is made with a flexible arch which permits the cantilever spring of your foot to function normally. It gives that ease and resilience which characterize a perfect carriage. This can only be accomplished by giving perfect freedom to the muscles of the foot. The flexible arch of the Cantilever Shoe fits snugly, while it forms a natural support to the instep.

Makes Life Easier

Cantilever Shoes give an added zest to your pleasures and lighten the daily duties. They are stylish as well as comfortable. The modish, rounded toe and the medium heel are worn by women who are particular about wearing correct clothes.

That youthful, swinging step is made possible by wearing Cantilevers. Buy a pair tomorrow and know what it means to walk out-of-doors or at your every day work without fatigue.

Grain Market Opinions.

Lamson Bros & Co.: War-like demonstrations in Europe would postpone the granting of credits and that would be temporarily bearish.

Duffy Frazier: Eventually, we feel values will work higher.

E. Lowitz & Co.: The general situation favors the seller.

Stein Alstrin: Purchases are suggested on further dip.

Harris Winthrop & Co.: Nervousness over the foreign situation restricts sellers more than buyers.

Hulburd Warren & Chandler: Until European affairs are straightened out lower prices for our grains are probable.

Thomson McKinnon & Co.: We anticipate lower prices.

Logan & Bryan: Ample offerings appear on hard spots.

Riordan Martin & Co.: Would confine purchases to recessions and would not follow upturns very far.

J. E. Bennett & Co.: The fact that grains are cheap as compared with labor land values and other commodities, encourages support on the dips.

Simpson: Until new conditions develop or there is a decided extension of the export demand, I think it is going to require constant support to maintain present values on wheat and corn.—Lamson.

Chicago Tribune Report.

CHICAGO, Jan 18.—It is easy to advance prices by continuous buying, but another thing to sell out at the top.

Complications in Europe have caused uneasiness among exporters. Exchange rates have declined and exporters are in doubt as to what they will be able to do with the grain they have sold to Germany and the continent. Some have cash grain bought and are trying to move it to the seaboard to be in position to ship on short notice, others have futures bought against their sales abroad. Losses can result either way and developments are eagerly awaited.

While many operators are bullish on corn, others say the situation does not warrant a material advance at present.

Some traders feel bullish on oats, due to the small local stocks and world's visible figures both of which are sharply under last year.

Export sales yesterday: Wheat, 650,000 bushels including 600,000 Manitobas and 150,000 bushels durum. Corn, 100,000 bushels. Rye, 250,000 bushels.—Lamson.

Journal of Commerce Report.

CHICAGO, Jan 18.—Sentiment in wheat is mainly bearish but corn traders mainly bullish. There is not enough speculative interest in oats or rye to cause much of a movement either way.

Disintegration of the German empire would be regarded by some as bearish and by others as bullish. The latter believe seceding states would get financial help from France and other countries.—Lamson.

Stock Market Opinions.

Lamson Bros. & Co.: Near the close the undertone of the market was very firm.

Post and Flagg: The general aspect of the market is a waiting one.

Housman & Co.: The one sustaining factor continues to be the absence of real liquidation.

Block-Maloney & Co.: We think good results may be secured by purchases on the dips.

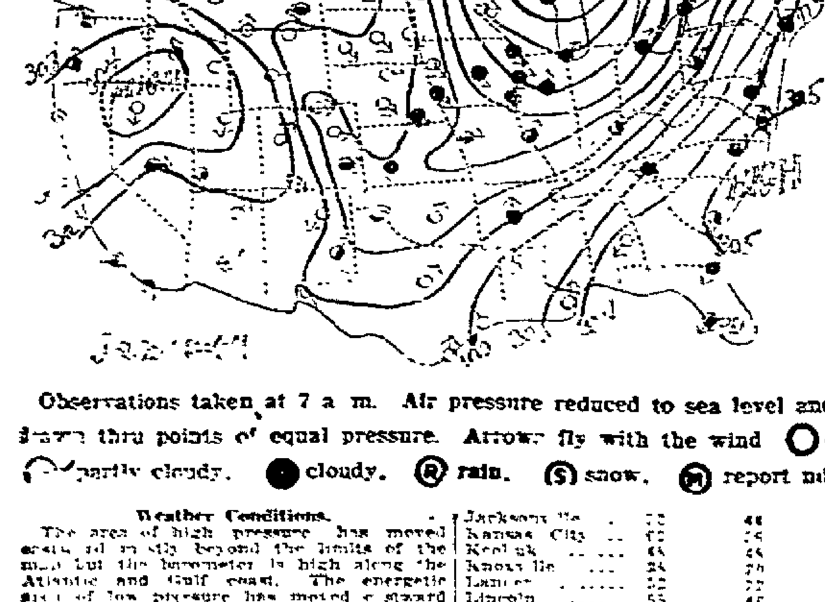

Harris Winthrop & Co.: An irregular market is about all that can be expected.

Clark-Childs & Co.: The market appears to be oversold around these prices.

Logan & Bryan: We believe the general market will be inclined upward.

Thomson-McKinnon: A rasonable amount of liquidation in the near future would not be surprising.—Lamson.

PENALTIES TO BE INCREASED

FRENCH MOVE APPROVED BY BELGIUM AND ITALY.

British Offer No Objection to the Paris Plan Concerning the Left Bank of the Rhine.

PARIS, Jan. 18.—Belgium and Italy approved and Britain did not oppose France's plans to inflict further penalties on Germany for reparations defaults, it was announced today.

Replies were received by France from Italy and Belgium acquiescing in the proposal to erect a customs barrier around the Rhineland Ruhr. England while not approving this, raised no objection to measure concerning the left bank of the Rhine.

France replied today to Germany's protest against occupation of the Ruhr, stating the action was not of a military nature and was not an act of war. It was only a matter of protesting the French civilian mission, the reply stated.

Marshal Foch has not asked additional troops for the Ruhr, and the army of occupation there now numbers about fifty thousand it was semi-officially announced.

NEW RADIO CLUB FORMED

Enthusiasts in Wireless Organize a Weekly Lunch Club to Hold First Meeting Tuesday.

A dozen radio enthusiasts have come together with George W. Bucklin as prime mover to form a lunch club to meet each Tuesday noon for an informal round table discussion of topics in which they are most interested. All the members are practical electricians. Several of the twelve were in the United States signal corps during the war. The membership includes expert automobile mechanicians, automobile battery experts, Western Union telegraph operators, and men engaged in electric clock and electrical elevator adjustments. No officers have been chosen as yet. One restaurant promised an extra piece of pie in making a bid as a meeting place. The club will meet for the first time next Tuesday.

A radio club is also to be organized at the Clinton community center, with a regular instructor. The first meeting will be Thursday evening. An organization was also formed recently by radio enthusiasts at the Y. M. C. A. under the direction of Don Critchfield.

CONVICT GARAGE KEEPER

Reuben Norkin, Who Admitted Being Accomplice of Wife Slayer, to Be Sentenced to Death.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Reuben Norkin, garage keeper who confessed being an accomplice of Abraham Becker in the murder of the latter's wife, was convicted of first degree murder by a Bronx court jury early today and is to be sentenced to death Monday.

Norkin's admissions that he acted as a lookout while Becker slugged Mrs. Becker and buried her while she was still alive, in a lime pit near the Norkin garage, resulted in conviction and death penalty for the husband. The prosecution alleged Becker killed the woman to be free to marry another.

NAMES ONE OF THE MOB

FRED EUBANKS CHARGES E. N. GRAY WAS MEMBER.

First Identification of Anyone Connected With Hooded Crowd Charged With Slaying Daniel and Richards.

COURTHOUSE, BASTROP, La., Jan. 18.—E. N. Gray today was charged by his friend and neighbor, Fred Eubanks, with being a member of the hooded mob that kidnaped Watt Daniel and Thomas Richards before they were murdered August 24.

Eubanks, testifying in the open hearing here, declared he was in one of the automobiles held up that night while masked men searched for Daniel, Richards and others.

"When your car was held up that evening along with the others did you recognize one of the hooded men who stood near your car?" he was asked.

"Yes, sir," replied the witness.

"Who was the man you recognized?"

"It was Mr. Newt Gray."

With those words the first identification of anyone even faintly connected with the events that culminated in the murder of Daniel and Richards was brought to light.

Eubanks told of being held up a second time the same night by three hooded men. He did not recognize any of the latter, he said.

After the second holdup he was permitted to continue on his way home, Eubanks said.

Eubanks told of attending church on the night of the kidnaping and stated that Gray, a regular attendant, was not present. He said he saw Gray the next morning.

Bud Jones of Bonita, summoned to the stand next, admitted he was a klansman but said he was absent from Bastrop all during the day and night of the murders.

Special Prosecutor Warren then called on Leon Daniel, son of J. L. Daniel and only brother of Watt Daniel.

Daniel testified that he heard it talked about Mer Rouge that his brother, Watt, and Thomas F. Richards were suspected of shooting at Dr. McKoin. Watt denied knowledge of the shooting, he said.

Daniel told of hooded bands calling on negroes on his father's plantation whom they suspected of making whisky. He stated his brother, Watt, objected to this.

Henry Pipes, farmer, was then called. He told of being stopped in Collinston when the hooded men stopped at an oil station for gas but declared he did not recognize any of them.

KNOW DANCER'S ASSAILANT?

Police Say They Know Name of Man Companion Evening of Fritzie Mann's Death.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 18.—Letters alleged to have been written to Fritzie Mann, dancer, by a San Diego man while she was at Long Beach, Cal., were turned over to the police here today.

The letters contained terms of endearment and referred to her delicate condition.

Important information in connection with her mysterious death was said to be contained in the letters. Telegrams from girl friends of the dead dancer are also in the hands of the police, and it was said may shed light on the case.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 18.—Arrests were expected today, according to the police, in connection with the alleged murder of Fritzie Mann, dancer.

Police declared they had traced her movements since she left Long Beach, California, late Saturday and found that Sunday night she drove up to an inn at La Jolla, near San Diego, in an automobile with a man whose identity is known. The two remained there until late into the night.

It was the following day that her half clad body was washed up by the sea under the cliffs of Torrey Pines, near here. Police said they had established the fact that Miss Mann was taken to Torrey Pines some time during the night in an automobile—that she did not go alone to commit suicide.

DENVER, Jan. 18.—Miss Fritzie Mann, whose body was found on the beach near San Diego, lived here with her mother and brother until about a year ago. She and her sister were well known in Denver as dancers.

Her brother, William Mann, was prominent in local political circles.

POLA IS AT PEBBLE BEACH

MONTEREY, Cal., Jan. 18.—Good people of Monterey, Pebble Beach and romantic Carmel-by-the-Sea today were looking for little, crooked legged Cupids, wearing battered derby hats, oversize shoes, baggy trousers and carrying funny canes, lurking among the pines and the cypress hereabouts.

There was an atmosphere of romance, and it all centered around a pretty cottage at Pebble Beach where Pola Negri, Polish actress, is "resting for a fortnight."

Just why this young lady should come alone to Pebble Beach and take a cottage, from the window of which she sees only the wild waves in their endless ebb and flow, was more than most folks could say.

Miss Negri arrived unannounced Monday, after Charlie Chaplin had admittedly accompanied her as far as Santa Barbara. She registered as the Countess Domski and immediately began her business of resting.

She wouldn't tell anyone where she got the solitaire ring—of gigantic proportions—which burns like a torch on her left hand. She wouldn't tell anyone anything.

Some people even go so far as to say they believe that Pola Negri right now is Mrs. Charles Chaplin.

Others, however, are watching for the arrival of the famed comedian and perhaps a hurry call for the minister who presides over some one of the many romantic seaside chapels of the Monterey region.

KENYON IS SENTENCED

Late Thursday afternoon Judge Stewart of the district court sentenced H. W. Kenyon to from one to seven years in the state penitentiary on the charge of converting to his own use $1,600 worth of Bankers' Fire Insurance company stock that had been taken from the bank at Ceresco by Charles Maixner.

Dentist Declares Teeth, Tongue and Lips Fortress Against Disease.

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—The health of the nation depends on the strength of its mouths.

Teeth, tongue and lips are the strongest fortress against disease or the surest road to ill-health, Dr. A. W. Thornton, dean of dentistry at McGill university, Montreal, declared here today before the international dentists' clinic.

More than ten thousand dentists from the United States and Europe were on hand for the opening of the fifty-fifth convention.

MEN AND THINGS

Our admiration for the supreme court grows apace. It has brushed aside with emphasis the claim put forward in behalf of embezzling bankers that they could not be punished because when the legislature amended the embezzlement statute the last time it failed to attach what is known in law as a saving clause and which, when attached, operates to keep the old law in effect as against offenders against it. The lawyers claimed that this amounted to a legislative pardon to their clients. Judge Dean, in his opinion, dismissing this contention, declares it unthinkable that the legislature ever intended, either directly or indirectly, to cause the dismissal of prosecutions that had not yet been brought to trial—and it is unthinkable.

Twenty years ago, if we read our legal history straight, the courts would have sustained this objection without turning a hair. That was an age of technicalities. It was a time when an indictment was held faulty because it omitted the word "the" before "state of Missouri." Courts and judges have caught step with advanced and intelligent public opinion. They give to every defendant every substantial right he ever possessed. They simply refuse to allow guilty men to escape by the technicality route. Lawyers who have a wrong notion of their duty to a client as opposed to their duty as officers of the court and, therefore, to the state, might well take notice.

Democratic members of the legislature who are inclined to play politics in the matter of appropriations and who are trying to maneuver it so that their party may get the republicans into a hole, and enable them to go before the people two years hence and claim they would have cut the state expense if the republicans had not done so, mistake entirely the temper of the people about taxes. They are not interested in who is responsible or who is not responsible. They want results. They expect expenses to be cut where the interests of the state will permit. They expect to pay for whatever agencies it is necessary and profitable to retain It ought not to be a question of starving agencies, by inadequate appropriations, but of properly maintaining those necessary and eliminating entirely those that the majority judgment holds to be unnecessary or undesirable.

In the manual of Epictetus you will find, if you don't take our word for it, something to the effect that men are tormented by the opinions they have of things and not by the things themselves. Those old Greeks had a way of compressing some good things in small compass. All that this means is that we are as we think we are. If you regard a thing as a torment it will be a torment to you whether it is in its essence a torment or not. It does not mean that if a thing is evil you can make it good by merely saying over some formula of words, which are but incantations in a modern form. Man's power over the inanimate things is great, as it is over such live things as emotion, thoughts and moral forces. It is limited, however, by his inability to make black actually white by merely trying to make himself believe that it is.

There is another form of prohibition that if it could be worked, would help us mightily in putting to flight some of our great social ills. It concerns itself with limiting the flow of words. We formulate our political institutions more often along the lines of argument than of logic; that is to say, we listen more to the men who flatter our understanding than those who seek to enlighten it. The old Athenians refused to allow their orators to use rhetoric because exordiums and perorations came to be so skillfully worded that it was easy, thru the emotions, to control the populace where sound common sense was demanded.

The people of Germany are paying a very heavy price for their folly of following where the kaiser led. Not only are they being humiliated by an ancient rival, which has thrust its bristling legions into the homeland, but their money is practically valueless, and penury and hard work face most of them for a long stretch of years. With the condition of Germany staring them in the face, what monumental fools are the French people to follow their crazy militarists' banners!

Gasoline alley news: A man never knows how narrow the streets of his home town are until he starts to driving an automobile. And then about three months later he is in a position to proclaim his knowledge of how to widen them. * * * Bert Forbes, railway commission engineer, drives just as deliberately and sedately as he walks. If it is past time for him to reach home, his wife can tell at a glance down the street whether or not he is on the way home. If she sees the stream of cars swerving out to go around a car headed in her direction, she knows her husband is coming and pushes the button for dinner. * * * A careful reading of the mayor's new traffic ordinance discloses one serious defect. He has hung lights on everybody but the chap who needs them most, the well known pedestrian.

Egypt's Dense Populaton.

From Current History: Egypt has an area of about 350,000 square miles. The bulk of the country consists of inhospitable sand and desert. Practically the only settled portion consists of a very narrow band of cultivated territory on each side of the Nile. The Nile valley and delta, the only settled portion of Egypt, have an area of 12,226 square miles, almost exactly one-fourth the size of New York state. This narrow area contains the densest population in the world. At the moment it should come to approximately 14,000,000. If New York state were as densely peopled, it would have nearly sixty million inhabitants, while the United Kingdom would on the same basis have 140,000,000.

Fifty Years of Work.

Luther Burbank, who has contributed more than three hundred new and improved forms of fruits, vegetables, nuts, grains and flowering plants to the agriculturists and horticulturists of the world, will round out fifty years of work March 7 when he will be seventy-four years old. To celebrate this double anniversary, says the Christian Science Monitor, counties of northern California will unite in a golden jubilee demonstration at Santa Rosa, where experimental gardens in which his work is done are located. The city will dedicate Burbank park, a tract of forty acres in which will be preserved permanently all of his plants.

Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands, who will celebrate her jubilee on the throne next August, is the only woman in the world who is a reigning sovereign in her own right, a position she has held since 1898, when she reached her majority and was formally crowned.

The hats and boots which the valet of the late Marquis de Soveral kept trim for many years may now be polished by the servant for himself The marquis, a close friend of the late King Edward, left $250 and all of his boots and hats to his faithful servant, in recognition of his long and devoted service.

WALT MASON

Hymn of Hate.

In my youth I used to hate with the fervor of a Hun; for revenge I'd grimly wait on the luckless hated one; any man who wrought me harm I declared a false alarm and I'd rather lose an arm than forget the ill he'd done. Now I bend beneath the weight of some ninety-seven years; all such bitter words as hate rudely jar upon my ears; age has many penalties, falling hair and aching knees, but the truth an old man sees, it is written down in tears. If a voter does me wrong I forget it in a day; tho the memory be strong, I must shoo the thing away; for I'd rather think of pies, or of something else I prize, than to sit and hate the guys who have robbed me of my hay. When my soul is full of peace life's the thing of my desire; I can sit with aunt and niece, happy as a house afire; all the world seems good and fair, harmony is in the air, there's no baseness anywhere, and I gayly whang my lyre. But if hatred's in my heart, balmy peace must pull its freight, for these two must dwell apart, precious peace and horrid hate; and my life, so bright before, suddenly becomes a bore; nothing pleases any more till my evil thoughts abate. Anything opposed to peace is a thing we should avoid; when we've that our troubles cease, it's a blessing unalloyed; peace, which soothes our little lives, goes away when hate arrives, peace is dead if hate survives; therefore hate should be destroyed
